VOTE ON SMITH TO AID DECIDE STATE RIGHTS

Important Precedent Will Be

in Illinois

WANTS TO PLEAD CAUSE

Senator-elect Convinced He Has Legal Right to Take Oath of Office

Washington—Whatever the prejudices of individual senators may be on the merits of the case of Senator-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois, the truth is that an important precedent is about to be made which will further strengthen or weaken the rights of the states.

For although the supreme court of the United States has decided that the states are the sole judges of primary elections and nominating machinery, there are efforts being made to exercise a jurisdiction over these same elections by applying senate rules on the personal qualifications of future members.

BELIEVES HE'S RIGHT

Col. Frank Smith is defying the leaders of the Republican party because he is convinced he has a legal right to sit in the United States senate and that he is the victim of a notoriety which has prejudiced the senatorial group against him.

All through his campaign he pointed out that there was no difference between what he did and what members of the present senate have done in accepting campaign contributions from constituents who might have legislation before congress. He argues that the Republican national campaign fund contains many contributions from interests benefited by the protective tariff policy. If that is unethical, then his acceptance of a contribution from public utility interests was unethical, but Mr. Smith declines to be singled out as the only one who should be prevented from holding a senate seat on that account.

EFFORTS TO SWAY SMITH

Colonel Smith's views are known here because efforts have repeatedly been made to get him to decline the appointment just given him by Governor Len Small to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator McKinley. It is said that Mr. Smith feels that he can get a chance to plead his case in person he will make friends for his side of the argument.

If the senate refuses to permit Mr. Smith to take the oath of office, the senatorship probably will remain vacant until March 4, next, when Mr. Smith has the right to appear again as a member of the new congress to which he was elected after the people of Illinois were thoroughly familiarized with the charges against him.

It is conceded that if the senate passes a resolution barring Mr. Smith now, he inevitably will be barred from the new congress for the balloting would be much the same if the issue were presented. So the fight if pressed at this time will mean a decision on the whole controversy.

There is still hope here among the Republican leaders that Mr. Smith can be persuaded to decline the appointment at this time and that the governor of Illinois will send another appointee to sit during the short session.

It is rumored that Governor Small has been urged to appoint Mrs. McNeill McCormick, wife of the late Senator McCormick. She has not been identified with the Small faction and did not campaign for Colonel Smith, but her appointment is being urged on the ground that it might be the beginning of harmony in Illinois politics.

MANHATTAN TO HAVE TALLEST BUILDING

New York—(AP)—Manhattan is out to keep the record for the world's tallest building away from Detroit. Plans have been filed for construction, beginning early next year, of a 110-story super-skyscraper. It will soar 1,208 feet from the street. Detroit has an 85-story skyscraper under way, the Bank Tower, which will be 59 stories higher than the Woolworth building the world's tallest building. Manhattan's new skyscraper will be 200 feet taller than the Bank Tower, 508 feet higher than the Woolworth building and approximately 200 feet taller than the Eiffel tower in Paris.

CIGAR STORE HEAD AND WIFE AGREE TO PART

New York—(AP)—David A. Schulte, who in a quarter of a century rose from a cigar store clerk to the head of a chain of nearly 300 shops, has separated from his wife after 22 years of married life. They signed a separation agreement 10 days ago. Neither would discuss the reason for the separation. Mrs. Schulte was Harriet Harris, daughter of I. Harris department store owner.

LUNAR PHENOMENON TONIGHT FOR FIRST TIME IN 400 YEARS

Boston—(AP)—A lunar phenomenon so rare that the last one occurred 400 years ago will delight the sky-gazer Saturday night. Scientifically speaking the moon will enter the earth's penumbra. But the man on the street will see it as a shadow that will flit lightly across the mountainous face of the man in the moon and then disappear.

It will be almost, but not quite, an eclipse. The umbra is the earth's true shadow and around this shadow, separating it from the dull light, is a zone of partial shadow, the penumbra. The appulse will come when the penumbra darkens the moon as the planet swings close to the umbra. The moon enters the penumbra about 11 o'clock, eastern standard time and there will be a general shadowing until about 1:20 Sunday morning when its accustomed face of chaste, cold white will be edged by a darkish hue shading to ruddy brown. Shortly after 3:30 the appulse will pass into history.

SHORTS GLOOM OVER SUDDEN MARKET RISE

Scurry to Cover When U. S.
Steel Heads Big Rise of Numerous Issues

New York—(AP)—The speculative frenzy which swept over the stock market Friday, in response to the $200,000,000 U. S. Steel stock dividend seemed to have run its course Saturday, and trading gradually quieted down. But thinking sales checked the upturn in many prominent industrial issues, and although pool operations were resumed elsewhere, considerable irregularity resulted. U. S. Steel opened at Friday night's final price of 15 1/2, but later fell below 15.

New York—(AP)—In the midst of joy of thousands over Christmas dividends, shorts in U. S. Steel and some other lines registered gloom Saturday because of the unexpected spurt in the stock market which sent prices soaring to new high levels after the Steel corporation's announcement of a 40 per cent stock dividend.

Among the shorts who scurried to cover when steel headed the big rise in dozens of stocks were Wall Street gossips like it, a group of Chicago operators who recently made a killing in Baldwin Locomotive stock.

SIGN OF REACTION

Reactions over the steel dividend away from Wall Street are suggested by the New York Times, which points out that farm bloc circles have more or less consistently opposed a high tariff as discriminatory against farmers and favor industry.

The New York World considers it significant that the cutting of the metal follows some time after the change from the 12 to the 8 hour day, which steel magnates had opposed as inviting ruin to the industry.

Financial circles generally believe the stock dividend was a joint suggestion of George P. Parker and J. P. Morgan. The action was generally interpreted as an expression on the part of the directors of the complete confidence in the stability and prosperity of the iron and steel industry and in the prospects for the coming year.

GREEN BAY WINS PRIZE IN PLAYGROUND CONTEST

Chicago—(AP)—Green Bay is one of the three middle western cities that have been awarded all three first prizes and ten other awards in the National Playground Beautification contest.

The Playground and Recreation Association of America announced Saturday the award of prizes of $500 each to Green Bay, LaPorte, Ind., and Stillman Valley, Ill. Prizes of $50 in nursery stock prizes went to Oak Park, Canton, Monmouth, Ill. and others. Awards were based on the progress made in landscaping planning and other development, rather than upon the final beauty of the parks and playgrounds.

BADGERS DROP GAME TO FRANKLIN SQUAD

Madison—(AP)—Franklin college defeated the University of Wisconsin cagers here Friday night, 27 to 24, in the first game of the season for the western conference team. Franklin held the lead throughout the greater part of the game. Wisconsin threatened only in the last few minutes of play. The Indiana team led 15 to 10 at the half. Wooden with 14 points was high point scorer for the Baptist quintet, while Behr with five field goals was the high counter for the Badgers. Barnum played a stellar game at guard for Wisconsin.

NEW AIRPLANE ROUTE WILL GO THROUGH CITY

Passenger Service and Possibly Air Mail Service
Promised Appleton

Establishment of a Fox River valley airplane passenger and express service and possibly an airmail route next spring between Milwaukee and Green Bay, with Appleton as one of the stopping places between the terminals, was promised at Milwaukee Friday by Col. L. H. Brittin, St. Paul, vice president of the Northwest Airways, Inc. The announcement followed a conference between Col. Brittin and Col. Peter Plasecki, Milwaukee postmaster.

Besides Appleton, landing fields will be provided at Neenah-Menasha, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, according to Col. Brittin.

The suggestion of combining the airmail route with the passenger and express service was made by the Milwaukee postmaster after Col. Brittin had barred his plans.

The matter of a government contract must be taken up before an air mail can be carried but it seems likely that this can be arranged by spring, it was said. The government must first approve such a route and then advertise for bids for a company to carry the mail.

APPROVAL SEEMS LIKELY

It was pointed out that the government would probably approve, since it would serve as an excellent feeder for the transcontinental route, and since the Northwest Airways is to establish a passenger route it will be possible for this concern to understand bid others to secure a mail contract.

Whether the airmail route is established or not the passenger service is assured, according to Col. Brittin. Milwaukee became a terminal on the Chicago, Milwaukee, Twin Cities of Minnesota line Saturday, when a plane was put in the hangar at the county airport to make regular trips between Milwaukee and Chicago.

WILL INSURE CONNECTIONS

This plane will be used only for these trips and will insure that Milwaukee mail will make connections with the eastern mail planes whether

HYER REPLIES TO COTTON CHARGES

Whitewater President Denies
All Allegations Made by Professor Cotton

Madison—(AP)—Making a counter-charge that Prof. J. R. Cotton, Whitewater normal school teacher, had been trying for some time to get him, President F. S. Hyer Saturday denied the teacher's charges of discrimination and conspiracy filed before the board of normal school regents.

Appearing before the board, the president of the school read a brief of 450 typewritten pages, denying every allegation made by the teacher. In his brief, filed with the board more than a month ago, Cotton alleged that President Hyer had discriminated against him in the matter of salary and that efforts had been made to discredit him because of his political stand.

In his answer Saturday, President Hyer said he had made recommendations for increases of salary for the teacher, but they were not accepted by the board of regents. He declared he had never attempted to dictate the stand of teachers on civic, religious or political matters but had objected to political bias being shown in the classroom.

Telling of how he forsook the Democratic party to vote for Senator La Follette, Hyer said he had declared there were no grounds for Cotton's assertions that he had been discriminated against for supporting the progressive party. Cotton was retained on the faculty the President said after he had found grounds for the teacher's dismissal.

Refuting the teachers charges that his classrooms were neglected, the president told of how Cotton had been allowed to select his own classroom furniture and that lights and new chairs were installed in his rooms while other classrooms lacked them.

FAIL TO IDENTIFY NEGRO AS STRANGLER OF WOMEN

Philadelphia—(AP)—An attempt of the police to identify "Young Joe" Wolcott, a Negro prizefighter, as "the strangler" who killed three women in this city a year ago seemed ready to collapse Saturday. Vigorous questioning by half a dozen detectives brought only denials from the prisoner who asserted that he was in jail in Pittsburgh when one of the women was slain and was fighting outside of Philadelphia when the other two were choked to death.

Benjamin Harris, a pawnbroker clerk, who partially identified Wolcott from a photograph as the man who pawned some clothing belonging to one of the strangled victims, said when he confronted Wolcott in city hall that he was not the man.

Need More Good Fellows To Feed Appleton's Poor

Just a week remains for Appleton people to join the Good Fellows club and help make Christmas happy for the city's unfortunate. In that week almost $2,600 must be paid in by Good Fellow members to provide the money required by the four cooperating charities in Appleton Welfare council to carry on their great work of charity this severe winter. Remember that these charities are almost entirely dependent upon the bounty of Good Fellows to carry on their work and if Appleton people fail to become Good Fellows the poor will suffer.

Approximately 225 families receive help from the cooperating charities and for some of these families the only sustenance they receive is what they get from charity. There is no one in the family to work and starvation surely will follow if they are not given help. Then there are dozens upon dozens of families which somehow are able to gather together some of the bare necessities of life but nothing is left for even the most ordinary comforts. There will be no Christmas in these homes if Good Fellows do not respond to this appeal. It would be a pity if there is a single home in Appleton next Saturday without at least a little Christmas cheer.

But there surely will be unless there is a larger response from Appleton people to the plea to become Good Fellows. Only a week remains to get your name on this honor roll of the best people in Appleton. A little sacrifice on your part to help those who cannot help themselves will make your Christmas much happier. Try it and see.

Santa Is Planning To Use Airplanes On His Journey

New York—(AP)—Yes, children, there is a Santa Claus. Two Americans, who have been to the top of the world, say so. And Santa is to use aeroplanes and dirigibles as well as reindeer this year. Noting that boys and girls all over the world were concerned because Santa and reindeer were not mentioned in the explorer's narratives, Henry Woodhouse, president of the Aerial League of America wrote them. Asked whether Santa had been seen, Lincoln Ellsworth of the Norge replied:

"Absolutely. I hope the time will never come when I cannot see Santa Claus."

And this came from Commander Byrd: "How could I miss seeing Santa when I had been waiting all my life to visit his dominion?"

Ellsworth saw many reindeer. When Byrd was over the pole they were busy getting new antlers and hats for Christmas.

Ellsworth said he hopes Santa will always use reindeer, but he feared this progressive age would require the use of air craft. Byrd said he learned that Santa is using planes and dirigibles this year in addition to reindeer. Where he does not go by air, it will be the fault of the cities, he said, as they failed to provide airports on which Santa can land safely.

STATE ENDS DIRECT MELLETT TESTIMONY

Deny Defense Motion to Strike Reference to Fellow
Conspirators from Record

Canton, O.—(AP)—The state completed its presentation of direct testimony in the trial of Patrick Eugene McDermott, charged with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, at 9:23 Saturday morning.

Motion by defense, to have stricken from the record all reference to McDermott's alleged fellow conspirators, Rud Ruder and Louis Mazer, was overruled by Judge E. W. Diehl.

The defense claimed the state had not proved its contention that conspiracy existed between McDermott, Ruder and Mazer against Mellett.

The motion was made immediately after the state had rested its case. Over five days had been taken up in presentation of the state's testimony.

BOYS STEAL JEWELRY; CAUGHT AFTER CHASE

Chicago—(AP)—Two boys smashed a glass jewelry counter at the Fair, State-street department store, Friday, scooped up several hands full of jewelry and fled, only to be captured after a short chase by store attaches. Dennis P. Kelly, manager of the store, which is one of the largest in the city, said that the loot, probably worth several thousand dollars was recovered with the youths' capture. Kelly said neither of the boys was armed.

Hughes, Root, Smith & Co. Lament Bowery Passing

New York—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes and Edmund Root differ in political creed with Governor Alfred E. Smith, but they are able to join him in enthusiastic musical lamentation of the passing of "The Bowery."

The trio led a chorus of 100 men Friday night in the strains of that favorite ballad of a generation or more ago at a reunion in the Astor hotel of delegates to the 1915 state constitutional convention.

The orchestra had played the chorus of "The Bowery" and was starting "The Sidewalks of New York," the battle song of Governor Smith's victorious campaigns, when New York's Democratic favorite son leaped to his feet and called to the orchestra leader:

"Stop that. Have you got the music for 'The Bowery'?"

The dumfounded orchestra leader replied that he had not, and Governor Smith said:

"Well, never mind. I'll sing the verse and you fellows sing the chorus."

So the Democratic presidential aspirant sang the verse and two former Republican secretaries of state, one of them a former justice of the supreme court who resigned to run for the presidency, joined vigorously in declaring musically "I'll never go back any more to the Bowery."

Mr. Root chimed in vigorously with a baritone that brought every man to his feet roaring the half forgotten words, and Mr. Hughes whiskers could be seen moving to the rhythm.

JAP EMPEROR SINKING FAST; RUMORED DEAD

Royal Family in Closely Guarded Palace; "Important Announcement Due"

Tokio—(AP)—Although no one outside the royal family, members of the cabinet and their attendants know what is happening in the carefully guarded chamber of the royal villa at Hayama, where Emperor Yoshihito is dying, the outside world Saturday began to hear whispers of the ruler's passing. Newspaper correspondents have been told that an "important announcement" is coming.

The nation is still with that expectancy which always precedes such an occasion in the imperial palace. The cabinet has made its visit to the bedside. Battleships ride at anchor almost within sight of the villa. Day and night, princes and princesses of the blood remain faithfully near the sick room, and other members of the royal family are at hand.

AILING SINCE 1921

Six physicians remain with their ruler. He has bronchial pneumonia. Yoshihito still is a young man, so far as his span of years is concerned—47. He has been ailing since 1921, when the cares of state were lifted from his shoulders and set upon the stronger ones of his eldest son, Crown Prince Hirohito. Two attempts at hara-kiri, the Japanese name for self destruction, have been noted in the village in the last few hours. One of the nurses attempted to slash her throat with a razor and a minor public official also attempted suicide. This is taken as a demonstration of grief for their ruler.

The latest bulletin showed the emperor's temperature to be over 101 but, the bulletins from the sickroom are coming with less frequency than heretofore.

Whether the ruler's death will be officially announced in Hayama, in case death overtakes him there, or whether he will be returned to the imperial palace at Tokyo before the announcement is made is a matter of conjecture. Heretofore custom has required that death be announced only when the body lies in the palace.

POPE PIUS KNIGHTS GREEN BAY RESIDENT

Order of St. Gregory Will Be Conferred on John F. Martin, Report

Green Bay—(AP)—John F. Martin, supreme director of the Knights of Columbus and chairman of the committee that organized the Green Bay council of that organization, has been appointed a knight of St. Gregory by Pope Pius according to unofficial reports reaching here. Monsignor Spellman, who is bringing the decoration to the United States, is in Boston and it is expected that Mr. Martin will be notified of the honor within a few days.

Mr. Martin's work in the order, for which it is assumed the decoration is given, has covered a quarter of a century in time and has taken him to Canada and many countries of Europe. He was chairman of the committee that instituted the local council in 1901 and since that time has held various positions. Mr. Martin has held the office of grand knight for three consecutive terms and was appointed district deputy of north-eastern Wisconsin, which he held for five years, and was elected state deputy to hold that office for two years. In 1912 he was elected a member of the supreme board of directors for a term of three years and has been elected five times. He was also a member of the official committee in charge of a pilgrimage to Europe primarily for the purpose of presenting to France a statue of Lafayette in the city of Metz.

Five persons in the state have been given this decoration. They include F. J. Sennsbrunner of Neenah, Gustave Kessler of Appleton, and William Bruce of Milwaukee.

4 WHEAT BELT CITIES SHOW BUSINESS GAINS

Minneapolis—(AP)—Four wheat belt cities and two others with livestock receiving centers were among the eight northwest points showing an increase in the money value of business in November compared with a year ago, says a Minneapolis Federal Reserve bank report.

The wheat belt cities are Billings and Helena, Mont. and Fargo and Minot, N. D. and the livestock centers are Sioux Falls, S. D., and South St. Paul, Superior and Lacrosse are the others registering gains.

For the whole northwest, the physical volume of business as measured by carloadings for the average working day during the first three weeks in November was slightly larger than a year ago, the report says.

SHAW PLEADS GUILTY OF INSPIRING WIVES TO LEAVE HUSBANDS

London—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw is quoted by the Daily Express as pleading guilty to having been instrumental in separating husbands and wives. Speaking to a fellow guest at a luncheon given by Lady Beecham, the famous dramatist is said to have remarked:

"I am supposed to have a bad effect on my age. I write plays like 'Candida' and unknown women write to me and say I have inspired them to leave their husbands."

"Sometime I meet them afterwards and I meet them whether their decision was justified. They usually say yes, and I feel less guilty."

ONE MISSING LAKE SHIP IS SAFE IN PORT

Fitzgerald Arrives Off Iroquois Point; Monroe C. Smith Still Out

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—(AP)—The steamer W. E. Fitzgerald, one of two grain boats reported missing on Lake Superior, arrived off Iroquois point Saturday. The Monroe C. Smith, which accompanied the W. E. Fitzgerald out of Ft. Williams, and also reported from Buffalo as missing has not yet been sighted.

The Canadian Sault canal was closed Friday for the winter. A temperature of 13 degrees below zero prevailed Saturday.

The grain laden steamer C. O. Jenkins, its masts and hull covered with a thick coating of ice, tied up here Friday night after a tempestuous voyage across Lake Superior. The face of heavy gales and in high seas.

WORE LIFE PRESERVERS

Captain W. H. Alexander reported one of the stormiest passages of his career on the Great Lakes, saying that his crew wore life preservers virtually the entire voyage fearing the ship might go on the rocks.

DARROW SEES BLAINE FOR BADGER SLAYER

Madison—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago criminal lawyer, appeared before Governor Blake Friday in behalf of Adolph Eckman, Walworth co farmer serving a life term at Waupun for the slaying of Carl Fritz. Darrow's interview with Governor Blaine was brief, but the former maintained that Eckman's sentence should be commuted to a third degree manslaughter charge. The governor did not comment on the case.

In an interview after the hearing, Darrow declared that prohibition was the "bunk" and that there is no such thing as a crime war. He also expressed confidence in the present jury system.

LILLI LEHMANN, 78, STILL APPEARS IN OPERA OF GERMANY

Singer Was Friend of Many of World's Outstanding Celebrities

Berlin. —(AP)— Time has merely mellowed the charms of Lilli Lehmann, former prima donna of the Metropolitan opera. She suggests the youthful interpreter of German lieder in the retention of her mental vigor at 78.

With her sister Marie, also a singer of note, Frau Lehmann spends her declining years in an attractive villa in the beautiful suburban section of Berlin known as Grunewald. Opera scenes occasionally see and hear her at a performance. She has a number of advanced music students, including a few Americans.

WAS INTERNATIONAL IDOL. Mozart is her favorite composer and this year she made her usual pilgrimage to the Salzburg festival, where in former years she sang the leading role and stage-managed Mozart's performances.

Her pupils say from experience that she is vigorous as ever.

Madame Lehmann was the idol not only of the royal opera of Berlin but of New York and the numerous other American cities where she sang. The older opera goers of Prague, Danzig, Leipzig, Berlin, Bayreuth, Stockholm, London, Dresden, Paris and Salzburg, enthusiastic admirers of her even today.

Few persons have hobnobbed with as many celebrities as has Lilli Lehmann. She counted Grover Cleveland among her closer friends. Richard Wagner liked her so much that he offered to adopt her. Andrew Carnegie presided over a musical program given by her on the high seas in 1898. She was a confidant of William I of Germany, Francis Joseph of Austria, Oscar II of Sweden and William II of Germany vied in bestowing decorations upon her.

HONORED BY FELLOWS

Giuseppe Verdi agreed to come to Cologne in 1877 personally to conduct his "Requiem" when assured that Lilli Lehmann would sing the soprano solo part. Carl Schurz was one of a group of legal minds in America who urged Frau Lehmann to break her contract with the royal opera at Berlin in order to branch out into a larger field in the United States. Adeline Patil, then the queen of prima donnas, awarded her a place on one of her London benefit concert programs in 1881.

Franz Liszt, Johannes Brahms and Gustav Mahler, the composers; Carmen Sylva, the regal poetess; Adolf von Menzel, the painter; and Richard Wagner, the Chicago music master are some of the geniuses with whom she associated.

DON'T DELAY MAILING CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Mail Christmas greeting cards as well as parcels early, was the plea made by William H. Zuelke, postmaster at the local postoffice. The thousands of cards sent through the office are a decided addition to the regular business, he said.

Many packages have been sent, but comparatively few greetings have been mailed, the postmaster said. Patrons will save the clerks at the post office and the mail clerks a great deal of labor the last days before Christmas if they will send all Christmas mail early.

Lights will be visible for a radius of 15 miles. Liberty peak, stormy battleground of pioneer days, towers over the village of Trempealeau, rising 500 feet above the Mississippi river. Residents on the Minnesota side of the river from Queen's Bluff to Winona will be able to see the lights, which will be visible across Trempealeau prairie to Galesville and down river as far as La Crosse. The lights will be turned on Dec. 18.

Some motorist who evidently lost control of his car, succeeded in doing considerable damage about a filling station in Janesville. Two ornamental lights were knocked down, the free air and water stand was demolished, and two oil signs and some highway signs were torn from the ground. The only clue left was a rear bumper of a car.

TRUE LOVE DOESN'T RUN SMOOTHLY EVEN IN OUTAGAMIE - CO

The course of true love apparently doesn't run smoothly at all ways in either Brown or Outagamie-co. Several days ago a couple, both considerably above legal age, sought a license to wed at Green Bay. As the man lives in a city outside the county and the woman lives in Outagamie-co they were referred to the courthouse in Appleton.

The applications were filed in due form—when the mother of the prospective bride appeared on the scene and convinced the authorities that her daughter should not wed. Ill health was apparently the fundamental reason back of the mother's interference. From the fact that the license was nullified it would appear that the mother convinced the officials involved of the fact that her daughter should not be allowed to become one of the contracting parties to a marriage license.

The prospective bridegroom up to Friday had instituted no proceedings here to wage a legal battle for his bride.

NOMINATE SOPHS FOR OFFICERS OF ARIEL

Primary elections for editors and business manager of the Ariel, Lawrence college yearbook, were made at the Friday morning convocation services. Four candidates were entered for each office. The two receiving the highest number of votes will be announced Monday morning when the final elections will be held. Nominations were made by the sophomores but the entire student body will vote on the candidates.

George Dreher of Milwaukee, Arthur Mueller of Wauau, Milton Leadholm of Eau Claire, and George Krause of Oshkosh. Candidates for business manager were Oswald Gunderson of La Crosse, Donald Babcock of Appleton, Donald Hood of Baraboo, and Alois Fischl of Manitowoc. The new editor and business manager will assist those in charge of this year's book, and will direct the work on the Ariel for 1928.

AWARD GREEN BAY FIRST HONORS IN PLAYGROUND MEET

More Than 150 Grounds Entered in Competition of Recreation Association

Green Bay—(AP)—One hundred and fifty-three playgrounds were entered by cities of more than 25,000 population in the competition in which Green Bay has emerged with first prize of $500, according to the Playground and Recreation Association of America, which conducted the contest. The Harmon foundation is donor of the rewards.

The Green Bay park department, which superintended the improvements, had considerable competition from such cities as Oak Park, Ill., Dayton, O., Newton, Mass., and Pasadena, Cal. More than $1,000 was expended on playground apparatus and $1,500 in planting, seeding and the construction of a wading pool in Johannes Park, the New York entry in the competition. Trees were so planted as to "hide and take the course of the apparatus." Competitive flower gardens stimulated the interest of the public. Many children helped in the program of beautification. The playground is enclosed by shrubbery.

In La Porte, Ind., which took first prize in cities above 5,000 population and less than 25,000, every dollar's worth of improvement was made with private funds except the fence, which was donated by the board of education. One hundred and fifty-five dollars was donated for the trees, which were planted on Arbor Day. The Kiwanis club, the Business Girls association, school janitors, and many other groups and individuals aided in the work. The initiative was taken by Miss Mabel Foor, supervisor of physical training and summer playground activities for the board of education.

Stillman, Valley, Ill., first prize winner in communities under 5,000 population, has 300 inhabitants. Here the community recreation association beautified a recreation park. All labor was given voluntarily by citizens of the village. Thirty wagon loads of rubbish and a large sign board were removed from the park site. Three old buildings were torn down and a dangerous ditch filled in. One hundred tons of crushed stone were utilized for streets and walks and many shrubs and flowers were planted.

LAWRENCE GRADUATE DEPARTS FOR MEXICO

Ralph Culnan, Marinette, a graduate of Lawrence college, left Appleton Friday for New Mexico where he will live while completing several books of poems. Mr. Culnan started writing poetry while at Lawrence, and several of his works have been published as well as individual poems, which were printed in various national magazines. He was employed at the local Y. M. C. A. for some time. Included in his latest works will be several poems of New Mexico and the southern border.

County Running Wild With Road Program, Mayor Says

"What is the matter with our taxes?" is the question which Mayor A. C. Rule asks in an article concerning the present tax situation which he has submitted to The Post-Crescent. Mr. Rule declares that cities and villages in the county have made efforts to reduce the tax bill of property owners only to find a huge increase from the county which nullifies all their work.

"Taxes have increased in the towns more rapidly than they have in Appleton," Mr. Rule says in his statement. "Appleton taxes have increased 90 per cent in the last ten years while the average increase in the towns is 110 per cent," he says in his statement.

"Last week the writer attended the tax meeting arranged by the chamber of commerce," Mr. Rule says in opening his statement. "At this meeting Mayor Egan of Milwaukee and F. H. Clauson of Horicon in their speeches showed that the state is taking by indirect tax about $25,000,000 from the cities of the state, which in part is responsible for the cities raising the tax rate on general property. If this indirect tax was collected by the cities, they could lower their tax rate and still pay 10 per cent of all taxes collected to the state. I think this is the portion of taxes collected the constitution intended for state purposes.

I have attended several meetings of this kind and the trend of all meetings was that taxes must be lowered. The Legislature at its last session recognized this fact and appointed the Interim Tax committee to make an investigation and report at the next session of the legislature.

The school officials and city officials, recognizing the trend of the times, have made every effort possible to keep their budget as low as possible, and the city council has fixed the tax rate at 3 per cent, when with this additional county tax it should have been 3 1/2 per cent.

Now what has the county board done to lower taxes? According to figures published by Mr. Krugmeier and Mr. Witmer they have levied about $12,000 more for all county purposes than was raised last year.

MILLIONS FOR ROADS

The question of how much money to spend on roads each year seems to be the hardest thing for the county to work out, as when each district has been allotted what it seems to be entitled to the levy exceeds the legal 2-mill tax, until this year with the state aid (and remember all state aid is first collected in the county before it is turned back) and bond issue of $100,000 the board intends to spend about $655,440 on roads in the county in 1927.

In 1916 when the bond issue of $700,000 was passed by the voters, the county board could not take the responsibility of voting that much money without first putting it to a vote of the people. At that time the people were told that if they voted this bond issue it would be all the money that would be spent on roads for ten years, but in the last ten years we have spent $3,506,170 on roads and paid $516,800 interest on bonds, making a total cost of roads for the last ten years of $4,022,970.

I cannot understand how some supervisors will get up before commissions from Madison and plead to have taxes lowered because the laboring man living in their district earning 55 cents and 40 cents per hour cannot pay; and then vote to raise $240,000 for highway purposes in excess of the two mill tax allowed by law, and have as an excuse for so doing that some one is interfering with the county board.

Because the mayor of Appleton objected to this illegal levy, Mr. Niesen, supervisor from Kaukauna city, said before the county board that he could not understand why the people of Appleton elected the present mayor. Now the present mayor has never questioned the wisdom of the voters of Kaukauna in electing Mr. Niesen as their supervisor, but feels that the election of officials is the voters' problem, and the action of the voters should not be questioned by officials that are elected by them.

Now Mr. Farmer you may be told that Appleton is paying 42 per cent of this road work and it is all going on roads in the towns, but get out your tax receipt for 1915 and 1925 and you will find that the percentage of increase in taxes in the last ten years is larger in the towns than in the city. The taxes of the city of Appleton have about doubled in ten years, where in the towns they have increased very nearly three times. To be exact taxes have increased 90 per cent in Appleton in 10 years, and in the towns the increase averages about 140 per cent.

It seems to me that if the county board would make an effort to cut these expenditures instead of increasing them they would be doing the taxpayer a real service.

What is the real trouble with the county board? Do they feel that this road program is absolutely necessary or is the Highway Commissioner, Highway Committee, and men building these roads just a little bit over-thus with the highway program laid out by them.

Cities have this year, I think, made a sincere effort to lower taxes. Now what is the state and county board going to do to reduce them?

Yours Respectfully,
Albert C. Rule
Mayor of Appleton.

WHO IS ELECTED TO ROAD COMMITTEE? FARRELL OR ROHAN

Both Members Attend Meeting, and Politicos Are Wondering Why

When is a member of the highway committee not a member of the highway committee?

This little conundrum is agitating more than one politico as the days roll on into eternity. William Rohan, former chairman of the highway committee, attended the last meeting of the group held at the courthouse. James Farrell, either elected or not elected, to supersede Mr. Rohan on the board also attended.

In fact Mr. Farrell appears to have the edge on Mr. Rohan in so far as in the official meeting minutes he is accorded the seat. Mr. Rohan on the other hand is said to believe that the vote cast when the highway committee was elected at the November session of the board of supervisors was illegal. This assumption is based on the fact that the actual residence of C. J. Jackson, Seymour, whose work has required his moving to Madison, is being questioned by supporters of the former committee chairman.

The vote in this instance was 21 for Farrell and 20 for Rohan.

Before the special session of the board held a week ago, up to the last minute, it was believed that Mr. Rohan would file formal protest of the election with the board but this was withdrawn.

As the question of whether or not Mr. Jackson could vote his board seat has never been officially questioned there is as yet no official answer to the dilemma.

Mr. Rohan is said to take the stand that he "knows" Jackson's vote was cast for Mr. Farrell. That fact, if so, would leave the race an obvious tie but as the vote was taken by ballot it would present an impossible situation to determine for just how any given vote was cast except on the word of the board member casting the ballot. The impasse has aroused considerable interest as to what effect it would have on general legislation problems considered closed if it were to be determined that Mr. Jackson was not qualified to vote.

KISSES TO BE ONLY TOO FEW AT COURTHOUSE

One could not quite be so bold as to intimate that perhaps somebody is going to miss a Christmas kiss, or anything like that, oh, no, no, Oh My Goodness, no, but the sad fact remains and stands revealed that for the first time in 14 years—there ain't going to be no mistletoe at the courthouse, No-ho!

For that number of years Albert G. Koch, register of deeds, has sent to Oklahoma for a case of the holiday decoration foliage.

This year Mr. Koch did not send for any mistletoe.

Perhaps distribution caused some discussion-distribution of the mistletoe and not the myth connected with it, is meant.

Perhaps Mr. Koch forgot to write in time to come under the wire on the mistletoe harvest.

Anyway the sad fact remains immutable—there ain't going to be no mistletoe!

Girls' Glee Club and Boys' Chorus Sing Carols at Program

Festivities in honor of Christmas were held at Roosevelt junior high school Friday morning and afternoon. Carols were sung by the girls' glee club and the boys' chorus at the regular Friday morning assembly meeting, and the entire student body sang several songs.

A Christmas play directed by Miss Gladys Algiers was presented by the dramatic club of the school. The production was given at the meeting of the Parent-Teachers association Monday evening. The cast included: Audrey Fries, Mary Reineck, Polly Smiley, Ruth Weinlauf, Mary Anne Penney, Lillian Breitrick, Ruth McKenzie, Catherine Richmond, Margaret Mead, Loyal Fraser, Charles Widstein, William Peotter, Thelma Nohr, Edith Lenz, Doris Toll, Vern Frink, Jean DeLauer, Beulah Pasch and Verna Stark. Miss Myrtle Rohm gave a reading "The Old Violinist's Christmas," directed by Miss Edna Decker.

Third grade pupils of the Lincoln school played in a children's operetta, "A Fairy Conspiracy," after the school play. The operetta was prepared for a showing at Lawrence conservatory Thursday evening. Miss Catherine Bachman, teacher of the grade directed the work.

Informal parties by groups in the home rooms concluded the Christmas events. No classes were held at the school in the afternoon session.

COLD DOESN'T LOWER SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Rural school attendance was virtually not affected by the recent sub-zero weather, it was reported Friday by County Supervisor Arthur L. Collar. A considerable amount of missionary work has been done by the supervisors among parents this year urging better attendance records for the various school districts and this is bearing fruit, it was pointed out. In many instances during the extreme cold parents provided transportation from home to school and return. Mr. Collar said.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, young instructor at Pendleton University, arouses the anger of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN by choosing friends among the radical student set, including ERIC WATERS.

DR. PETER DORN, astronomy teacher, is in love with Judith and tries to make peace between her and the dean.

MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, is jealous of Eric's attentions to Judith.

Judith befriends the dean's wife when "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail her. Eric offers to silence Shea.

When Shea's body is found in a creek, Eric is arrested because of a letter addressed to him found in Shea's pocket. Several days later, Mrs. Brown tells the prosecutor prodigious lies, imperiling her own reputation, to provide an alibi for Eric.

Dr. Dorn calls on Judith in her classroom, and when Eric intrudes, throws him out of the room. Eric has been drinking and collapses in the hall.

Dean Brown insists that she take part in his reform campaign, which is to end with the mammoth revival meeting of Rev. Forrest Poole.

When she refuses, he tells her that his wife does not wish her to come to the house again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII
The dean's words struck sharply on the stillness. For a fraction of a second Judith stared.

The dean stood up. "As an evidence of my wife's wishes, let me point out the fact that she was at home this afternoon when you were seeking entrance. We both feel that further intimacy between you and her is undesirable."

He was standing by the desk, leaning on outspread starfish hands, so that they glowed faintly pink against the table top. His little eyes bored into Judith's face.

Judith turned and walked out of the room.

The shining face of the Rev. Forrest Poole, looking down from every bulletin board and post on the campus, saw some strange sights in the days that followed.

On administration hall, workmen were sawing wires around the dome and building huge letters over the entrance, which would say "Welcome" to all and sundry visitors on the night of the great rally.

A frequent sight on the campus these days was Dean Timothy Brown, walking arm-in-arm with Peter Dorn. Many people walked with Dorn now—the deans, the lesser faculty members, sometimes a town minister, and occasionally President Eanbury himself.

Judith walked alone.

Will Wetherell followed her through the thicket behind the journalism building one day and caught up with her on the bridge over the slender rill that scampered in and out around the campus.

"Judith," he said, pleadingly. She turned around.

"When are you going to take Eric back into favor? I think you're a little hard on him. He really has had a lot of bad luck lately, and your turning against him is the last straw."

"Did he ask you to come to me, Will?"

Wetherell shook his head. "Nope. But, to tell the truth, I'd like to see him get on his feet again, in time for the inter-collegiate debates. Sigma Psi needs somebody on the team. And Eric has been so sunk in gloom lately that he won't even listen to it. Darn shame, too, when you consider his Princeton debate record."

Judith's lips curled. "Will," she cried, "DARN Sigma Psi. I'll manage my own friendships and enemies." To his surprise, she turned on her heel and left him. But in a moment she was coming back, her hand outstretched. "Forgive me, Will. I had no right to be so snappish with you. But I've had some burdens of my own these days, and they've soured my disposition."

Will accepted her apology with a nod. They began to walk toward the Prairie Schooner. Wetherell was talking volubly, with only a sideways glance at her now and then for appreciation.

"Look at that silly sign," he exclaimed, waving airily at the letters built over the portal of the administration building. "That's all to impress the legislators. 'Welcome' to their prying noses and their nice fat appropriations in this spring's budget. Old Brown thinks he's made it the state senators go away impressed with the religious renaissance of Pendleton University. He wants a raise."

"State senators?" repeated Judith. "Yes, didn't you know? They're arriving the night of the rally, to sit on the platform behind Rev. Poole and say 'Amen' between snores kind a hard on you, Judith."

Judith smiled wearily. "And why?"

"Well," drawled Will, "you'll be standing with your little basket of white ribbons at one of the doors, won't you, pinning the emblem of purity on every young rascal who comes in?"

"I will not," said Judith grimly.

Wetherell whistled. "Well, that probably means the end of you then. The dean's got his heart set on 100 per cent reform. You're a fly in the ointment for him, anyway. By the way, how does he put up with your being friendly with his wife?"

Judith's face clouded. "He doesn't. It's necessary. She broke off friendly relations with me herself a week ago."

"Hm-m," mused Will. "I understood she was pretty strong for you."

This subject gave him thought until they were near the door of the Prairie Schooner. Then he looked up and, taking Judith's arm, turned into the Schooner pathway.

"When in doubt, cut," he said. "I sold an old set of sophomore philosophy themes to little Smudge Wilkins today, so I've got twenty-five bones extra to squander. Just remembered a set of Roman architecture papers that ought to bring ten or fifteen too."

"What would you do if the philosophy prof had the same exam reader this year?" asked Judith.

"He hasn't," said Wetherell. "And anyhow, they don't really grade those papers. They take 'em home and throw 'em down the front steps. The ones that land on the top step get A, the second B, and so on."

In the rear end of the crowded room a circle of young men surrounded the largest table. Seated on the edge of the table, with his feet on a nearby chair, was Eric Waters.

Judith saw that he was wearing corduroys and a blue sweater. His face, as he bent over the table in deep consultation with the other men, was flushed and earnest. Judith suddenly shifted her place at table.

"What's the idea?" Will inquired.

"Oh, I see, you've turned your back to him. Well, don't worry. Waters is too much engrossed in mighty matters just now to pay much attention to you." He wagged his head knowingly.

Judith gave him a glance, and looked again at the crowd around Eric. But she asked no questions. To the tune of Wetherell's endless chatter, she slipped her chocolate with her eyes lowered.

The talk behind her grew louder. "Absolute overthrow!" somebody was saying. Judith strained her ears,

CHRIST — "VIGOROUS AND POWERFUL"

To a group of New York clergymen who viewed this bronze figure of Jesus, Max Kalish, the sculptor, who recently brought it to America from Paris, explained: "The traditional conception of the Man of Sorrows has been so perfectly done by the old masters that there is no need for an artist today to do it over again. It seemed to me that the time had come to attempt to show the Christ of vigor and stern power whom we find abundantly described in the Gospels."

was flushed and earnest. Judith suddenly shifted her place at table.

"What's the idea?" Will inquired.

"Oh, I see, you've turned your back to him. Well, don't worry. Waters is too much engrossed in mighty matters just now to pay much attention to you." He wagged his head knowingly.

Judith gave him a glance, and looked again at the crowd around Eric. But she asked no questions. To the tune of Wetherell's endless chatter, she slipped her chocolate with her eyes lowered.

The talk behind her grew louder. "Absolute overthrow!" somebody was saying. Judith strained her ears, but the voice died down and she could hear Eric's lower tones, evidently cautioning his companions to discretion.

"Hell brewin' over there," commented Wetherell, fishing for the cherry in the bottom of his limonade glass. "Every man in that gang leads some cohort of the devil's legions."

"There's Thomas, who is in school on probation, and Bailey, of the TINT's, and Adams, who was kicked off the Sugar and Spice staff for a risqué wisecrack, and young Olle Johnson and Scripp Sewell."

Judith raised her eyes from her chocolate cup. "Will," she said, "what is Eric up to?"

He shook his head. "I don't know. That's one reason why I came to you today. Somebody's better keep an eye on him."

She shrugged her shoulders. "I'm not his keeper."

Wetherell's eyes narrowed. "Judith, don't you think you owe him something, after all? He's risked a good deal for you, hasn't he?"

Judith flushed. "I don't know what you mean, Will?"

"Then I'll tell you. Have you ever really known what gave Eric that bruise on the temple?"

Judith started, but did not reply.

"And do you really know where he was on Christmas Eve?"

For a long moment the girl stared at her plate. Then she rose to her feet suddenly, so that the silver clattered on the table.

"Let's go home," she said, shortly. Will was watching her with a half-smile. Shrugging his shoulders, he too rose and picked up the check.

The group in the rear of the room was watching them. As Judith turned to pick up her scarf from the back of her chair, she saw Eric climbing down from his position on the table. He bowed, with his hand on his heart.

"Greetings, Miss Judas," he said, smiling coldly.

Several persons near Judith's table heard the words, glanced up and then returned to their own conversation. But in the circle of men behind Eric, a titter ran about.

Wetherell was paying the check and had not noticed the incident. When he had put the change in his pocket and was looking for Judith, she laid her hand on his arm.

"Please hurry," she said.

GAME ATTENDANCE TO COUNT TOWARD CUP

The sponsorship plan entered into the giving of points for attendance at games. When a class sponsors a game, the committee said it would be expected to have the largest attendance. The Kaukauna game will not be sponsored by any class, so the attendance will be taken then for school spirit cup records.

Class committees for the contest will be instructed before the close of the first semester on the points to be discussed at the first hearing of entrants for the cup. The hearing will be held the first week in February.

RURAL TEACHERS PLAN CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS

Assisted by Parent-Teacher groups in many instances a large number of rural schools are busily engaged in arranging Christmas entertainments, many of which will be quite pretentious, it was announced Friday.

The programs, it was stated, will range from comparatively simple Christmas exercises to playlets and general festivals appropriate to the season.

Many of the school will hold their celebration in the evening rather than on the afternoon of the day which the school closes for the holiday.

FALL-DOHENY ACQUITTAL

It took a sentimental American jury nineteen hours to justify a verdict acquitting Doheny and Fall of conspiracy charges. It was what was generally expected, not that they were not guilty or that they were not proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, but that we are living in a day when persons charged with crime have all the best of it in the sympathies of juries. It is not only necessary to prove murder, but to show that the murderer is devoid of all claims to human compassion. We are for the criminal rather than for the law. This being the standard of American justice today, Doheny and Fall were entitled to their freedom. There was plenty in the story of Mr. Doheny and in the argument of defense counsel to excite tears and tender emotions. The jury, all but one or two with more horse sense than feeling, ate up the sob stuff. It would probably have ignored a written memorandum between Fall and Doheny explicitly engaging in a conspiracy.

Nevertheless, we think the verdict is repugnant to the sense of candid, deep-thinking citizens. They may accept the acquittal philosophically, but they cannot excuse the transaction which brought these men before the bar of justice. Government by such methods is all wrong, and the acceptance by Fall of money from Doheny under the circumstances was all wrong. If this conspiracy was not technically proved it is nevertheless implied. It is the same with the bribery charge. The character of the whole affair is not altered one iota by the inconsistent and puerile verdict of an invertebrate jury.

Fall and Doheny have been adjudged guilty by the nation and so they will remain. Men in high positions of public trust cannot receive money in satchels in secret from beneficiaries of their acts—acts which in this case stood to net a profit of $100,000,000—and escape the stigma of bribery and conspiracy.

One thing is to be said in favor of the federal judges in this unsavory business of Teapot Dome and the naval oil reserves. The trials of Fall, Doheny and Daugherty serve to emphasize the strength of our federal judicial system and the weakness of our jury system. At every turn of the road in the criminal trials and the civil actions arising out of the oil exposures, the judges of the federal courts have turned deaf ears to the influences of the defendants, and they have not permitted themselves to be misled by technicalities invoked by shrewd lawyers. Not once has there been any faltering. The circuit court of appeals at St. Louis unanimously denounced the Teapot Dome deal, which was of the same character as the Doheny deal, in which Sinclair bribed Fall for his leases. The court declared the whole transaction to be one of fraud and corruption, and Sinclair's leases were set aside as void on that account. Furthermore, the federal courts of the District of Columbia and the supreme court of the United States refused every specious plea and technical argument of Fall and Doheny to prevent their trial. The judges did all within their power to bring the wrong-doers to justice. The jury was another matter.

It is incomprehensible that a jury should be blinded to the uncontroverted facts in the Doheny-Fall case. It was the same kind of jury as a certain judge in Chicago was a kind of court that let two notorious murderers off, in that it swept aside the pertinent and controlling facts and permitted itself to be swayed by the sophistry and pleadings of lawyers skilled in these devices.

If the Fall-Doheny-Sinclair conspiracy was "the cleanest money that ever passed from one man's hand to another," as held up by one of the defense attorneys, then we might as well turn the resources and the government of this nation over to plunderers, exploiters and corruptionists. The country got a raw deal from the Fall-Doheny-Sinclair outfit in 1921, and it now gets a raw deal from a nanby-pamby Washington jury. It may fit the standards of this jazz-bootlegging era, but it is disappointing and noxious nevertheless.

SNOW REMOVAL AND POLITICS

Outagamie county which once had the reputation of leadership in everything pertaining to good roads and passable highways has fallen from its high position and is considered by many among the most backward of all counties in Wisconsin in keeping highways open for winter travel. Travelers who are obliged to get about during the winter with automobiles avoid Outagamie county at every possible opportunity because even its main highways are practically impassable.

Almost every other county of equal wealth and population has made some provision for keeping its roads open for winter travel, especially its principal highways. Outagamie county is spending between $600,000 and $700,000 on its roads every year and yet makes no provision for utilizing its huge investment in making highways passable 12 months in the year. It is doubtful if there is another county in the state of the approximate wealth of Outagamie county which is spending as much on its highways. It isn't likely that all the counties are raising more than legal amounts for highway purposes as was done in this county.

But snow removal in Outagamie county is not a matter of money. It is a matter of politics and of judgment. A few vociferous protests against snow removal from influential quarters has much more weight with our county board than the interests of those who pay the bulk of the taxes which these board members have been spending with so much abandon the last few years.

The fact that roads are impassable or at best extremely difficult for travel has cost Appleton merchants thousands of dollars this holiday season and it will cost them many more dollars before the winter is over because persons living outside the city cannot come here to do their shopping. Merchants in all the cities and villages of the county also are losing trade because of this condition.

Brown county and Winnebago county have found that keeping highways open in the winter is good business for they have been doing it for several years and are doing it this year. In fact Brown county employees came into Outagamie county and opened up Highway 15 from the county line to Kaukauna. Any one can guess whether persons living on that highway will do their shopping in Green Bay or in Appleton. Outagamie county supervisors, by failing to keep that road open, have helped drive trade away from the merchants who are paying Outagamie county taxes. It is perfectly obvious that this is not good business.

Probably it is too late to do anything about snow removal any more this year inasmuch as the board will not meet again until February but it is well to consider these things when a new board is elected next April. The present board has shown that it is entirely unresponsive to the demands of the taxpayers in this important matter.

HEREDITY

I'm no biologist; I can't Explain the structure of a plant
Or talk in strange and curious terms
Of protoplasm and of germs.
But this is plain as plain can be
That boy of mine is much like me.

When on a chair he flings his hat
I'm sure no stranger taught him that!
Those dressing tactics, oh, so slow!
Which irritate his mother so.
Were not acquired but yesterday
I used to dandle just that way!

I see him living o'er and o'er
So much that I was scolded for.
That random indifference to
The little things he ought to do
Should be corrected, but I know
I did, as he does, long ago.

That love of laughter and of mirth
Came with him on his day of birth.
In many a fault and many a whim
I see myself reborn in him.
And it's unfair to scold a lad
For merely being like his dad.

MOTHER NEVER TOLD HER

Recently I have had an extraordinary number of letters from girls asking for information which girls should have, and in a great many of these letters mother comes in for a pretty severe indictment. It seems that mother has fallen down badly on the job. Mother has coldly evaded the confidences her young daughter would have with her. Mother has hinted, or scolded, or threatened vague perils but has not explained anything clearly and frankly. One young miss who confesses to "14 summers and three winters" goes into her sad if not very dreadful history in detail, and suddenly exclaims: "Confide in mother? Never!"

Now that is the right spirit at all. It is all wrong, deplorably wrong, that girls should feel more at ease in confiding in some one else, anyone else, than in mother. Just who may be to blame for this state of affairs is a debatable question, but from the attitude and revelations of many of these girls, representative of their age group, I take it, it is fairly certain that mother is suffering these days from shock and from heartache, too. That's what makes her hint and cold and threaten dire perils. Poor mother is a bit dazed by some of her children's confidences.

I am glad to note that a large share of the girls who write to me for sex information refer to mother as a "great pal." A great pal—but still mother has seemed to discourage any questions or inquiries, and so daughter has arrived at the age of 15, 17, 19 or 21 still "very green" and therefore often "embarrassed" when more sophisticated girls of her own age say anything which the poor child construes as a jibe at her ignorance.

There is some ground for this widespread feeling among girls in their teens that mother has side-stepped the duty. That is a pretty general habit, still. Only here and there is a mother prepared and equipped to take the child to her breast and answer the first curious questions in a fine and honest way. This is no small task. We must not hold it against mother if she is a little dilly-dilly, a little loath to tell daughter everything, at the first communion. Enough if she makes a start on the wonderful story of life and lets daughter know that there is one confidante who will, at least, never lie in answering daughter's questions. It is a difficult task, so very difficult that many well meaning mothers do unquestionably fall down badly on it. I have some idea of the difficulties even a doctor finds in giving such information or instruction to girls he will probably never know; for mother the job must be infinitely harder.

Once more I would direct the attention of mothers to the excellent pamphlet, "The Wonderful Story of Life," issued by the public health service bureau of the treasury department, Washington. This gives an excellent outline of the way in which a girl may answer child questions honestly from the very first. And for the instruction of older children, a book entitled "The Parent's Guide," published by J. L. Nichols company, Naperville, Ill., will help any mother in the enlightenment of her young daughter or any father in the enlightenment of his son.

To our great shame it is impossible to write openly and frankly about this subject in a newspaper, although the very people who would protest such publicity never protest the publication of things which would be unmentionable in any home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Calcium in Migraine
Please print once more the suggestion about the use of calcium-lactate to relieve or prevent attacks of migraine. I have suffered damnably from this trouble for many years and can find no relief. (B. A. V.)

Answer—Take 20 grains of calcium lactate immediately at the first sign of approach of an attack. If you suffer seizures as often as once a week, take five or 10 grains of calcium lactate night and morning for a period of two months.

Oil Rub

Is it harmful to rub one's body with coconut oil and leave it on all night? What effect does this have? (S. A.)

Answer—Not if the oil is fresh. It has no effect, except as an emollient (softening and soothing) on the skin, and the insulating effect of any oil. Of course no such application to the skin feeds or nourishes or fattens in any way.

Nick O. Tin

I am 22 and have smoked cigarettes excessively for four years, about fifteen a day, but I do not inhale. Does the nicotine in the cigarette paper rather than in the lungs and predispose to T. B.? (W. A.)

Answer—No nicotine in the paper. Immaterial whether you "inhale." Your habit probably predisposes to T. B.

Marriage license was issued to James Nelson and Elizabeth Taggers, both of Kaukauna. The annual meeting of the Outagamie County Agricultural Society was to be held at the office of the secretary, L. Jaquot, in the village of Hortonville, on Jan. 8.

G. T. Moeskes, who since 1889 had been probate judge of Outagamie-co, was to vacate that office on Jan. 1 and was to associate himself in the law business with Humphrey Pierce and J. E. Lehr under the firm name of Pierce, Lehr and Moeskes.

AN OVERWORKED SANTA CLAUS

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

ON—

NEW POLICE WEAPONS

Washington, D. C. — In making war on crime and criminals, officers of the law have amazing array of new weapons, as well as many safety devices for their own protection. Nowdays at the annual convention of the police chiefs of the United States one of the big features is the exhibitions of this offensive and defensive equipment, and the old patrolman who fought all his battles with his trusty lousiest stick finds himself and his methods hopelessly antiquated.

Not even the night stick is what it used to be. It looks the same, and can be used as a billy to beat a criminal into submission, but it has a distinctively new feature in the form of a little button at one end. When that button is pressed the night stick shoots a spray of tear gas that is sufficient to put half a dozen men out of action at a distance of fifteen to twenty feet.

In fact, a great many of the new devices for police officers use gas of one kind or another in various ways. They range all the way from bombs to fake over-size fountain pens. There are tear-gas cartridges for revolvers, a single one of which is said to have knocked an angry mob of 150 gamblers in a night raid in a Middle West city. There are hand grenades in different colors, each color indicating the content, which varies from a comparatively mild sneezing gas to be used in dispersing mobs including women and children, to the strongest of tear gas, to be brought into action against barricaded desperadoes.

A new kind of riot gun that resembles a small suitcase will be found among the equipment of officers responding to a riot call in the future. It looks wholly innocent, but it is charged with tear gas under 1800 pounds pressure, and carries enough of the stuff to put a mob of 2000 people out of commission. With this weapon in action it is guaranteed that rioters, however vicious or incensed they may be, will speedily forget what they are rioting about.

DEVICE FOR BANK MESSENGERS
Some what similar in character is a suitcase handle for bank messengers' bags which is harmless so long as the messenger holds it in a certain way, but will throw out clouds of tear gas if a hold-up man grabs the bag or forces the messenger to drop it. This handle is also used on the brief cases in which bonds are carried.

A desk ornament that looks like an old gun of paper weight can be used to protect a house against burglars by connecting it up with a radio C-battery, with wires and switches at each door and window, or a bank teller or cashier can bring it into action against bandits by stepping on a button on the floor when he is obeying the order to hold up his hands. There are also numerous devices to be placed in various strategic points about a factory paymaster's office that in emergency will fill the room with a cloud of smoke and gas, the fake fountain pen mentioned before that shoots a 38-caliber tear gas cartridge, and even knives to be concealed in coats that ambitious yeekens may tamper with.

Nickle-plated zincmarks wholly innocent in appearance have been devised as an automobile attachment that is the latest thing for repelling hold-up artists or hi-jackers. They are connected with a tank of tear gas and operated by a button on the floor of the car. They will shoot off enough gas to blind anybody and everybody within a twenty-foot range on either side of the machine.

Machine guns, rifles, and automatics and revolvers of all kinds, even to the old-fashioned single-action Colt is that was a favorite in frontier days, comprise the armament of a modern police force. One of the latest inventions is a light machine gun with a demountable stock, so that it may be converted into a revolver, that is capable of firing several hundred shots a minute. Its ammunition includes incendiary bullets to be fired into the gas tanks of automobiles used by criminals.

A new revolver, designed at the request of the police authorities for the special use of plain clothes men, is a 38-caliber gun with a barrel so short that it can be carried in a side coat pocket and fired through the coat, thus wasting no time on the draw. It shoots 200 grains of lead.

OFFICERS RARELY USE AUTOMATICS

Comparatively few police officers use automatics, the great majority of them preferring the 38-caliber double action revolvers. They do not want anything lighter than that, for it is important that their shots have a maximum of stopping power. For this purpose one of the arms companies is turning out a new type of ammunition for the police, a 200-grain lead bullet that has no jacket. Its effect is almost that of the dumdum bullet.

The steel and copper-jacketed bullets are recognized as more humane, but they do not always put their object down and out instantly and there have been many instances of the loss of officers' lives because a bad man had enough life left in him to do a bit of shooting after he himself had received a fatal wound. This new bullet makes a neat little hole as it enters, but where it comes out it makes one of two or three inches in diameter, and it does a lot of disastrous things while it is penetrating a man's hide.

Another innovation for the police is not a weapon, but a method of wearing and handling an extra revolver. An expert recommends that every officer wear an extra gun in a scabbard on his left hip with the barrel forward, so that he can draw it with his left hand — when his right is otherwise engaged or has been disabled — flip it up and fire it upside down. A little practice, it is said, makes for a deal of accuracy in this way of handling a revolver, and may prove to be a life-saver.

Police are interested, it goes without saying, in new weapons and new ideas for fighting the modern criminal, for the latter is in nine cases out of ten a killer. Criminals of a generation ago were not given to using guns except when they were in the most desperate of situations, for they preferred a prison term to the gallows or the electric chair. To-day their ranks have been recruited with youths who full of liquor or dope, look upon a killing as a mere incident. They go in primarily for automatics, but in many instances they use machine guns. Liquor wars, in particular, have developed the use of the last mentioned arm.

Armored cars and motor cycles and bullet-proof vests are also essentials of the up-to-date equipment of policemen.

Then, too, the police are interested in various devices that are used in directing or controlling traffic. Automobile lights of which there are a dozen varieties, metal markers to be driven into the pavement that will last for years; new paints for traffic signs on pavements that will survive weeks of heavy travel before it is necessary to repaint them; whistles, sirens, and what not.

Q. What are meant by class towns in Maine? C. T. H.

A. This term refers to a town that is classed or combined with another town or towns to form a representative district, which classed town sends a Representative to the State Legislature. The origin of the term will be found in the Constitution of the State which provides for the apportionment of representatives. You will there find these words, "and towns and plantations duly organized not having 1500 inhabitants shall be classed as conveniently as may be into district containing the number."

Q. How many people lived in the District of Columbia in 1890? W. H. T. A. According to the 1890 census, there were 1493 residents.

Q. What is the origin of the military salute? N. W.

A. There have been several ideas advanced as to the origin of the military salute. It was supposed to have been the practice in Rome at the time of Julius Caesar for inferiors to raise the palm of the hand to the front of their caps in order to show that it contained no dagger. This was on account of the fact that assassinations were so common in those days. It has been suggested that time and custom have modified this to the military salute. Another idea suggested was that in British Army during the American Revolution it was customary for inferiors to uncover before superiors and equals in acknowledgment of their presence. On account of the clumsy headgear, this custom degenerated into saluting without removing the cap.

Q. What town stands on the site of Jericho? J. N. McG.

A. The village of Erith stands on the site of ancient Jericho, and consists merely of some 300 hovels and hut.

Q. Where are the largest cattle ranches? K. E.

A. The largest cattle ranches are located in New Mexico and Nevada. The larger number of range cattle are in California, New Mexico and Colorado.

Q. At what time in our history did about half the people raise the food and half the people buy it? E. C.

A. After making various estimates the Department of Agriculture has decided that the time when this was the condition was between 1820 to 1820. It would be safe to say that half of the people raised food for half of the population to consume at the end of the first quarter of the 19th century, approximately 1825.

Q. What exploring parties have visited the Antarctic within the past 25 years? R. N.

A. Exploring expeditions to the South Pole have been made by the following during the last 25 years: 1902 — Capt. F. Scott — 82 Deg. 17 Min. 1909 — Lt. Shackleton — 88 Deg. 23 Min. 1911 — Roald Amundsen 90 (Pole); 1912 — Capt. E. Scott 90 (Pole).

Q. How much does a medicine ball weigh? L. A.

A. These leather-covered balls weigh from four to nine pounds.

Q. Was the creature called "pterodactyl" the first bird? N. A.

A. "Pterodactyl" was not a bird but a flying reptile of the Mesozoic Age. "Archopteryx" is the earliest known bird and appeared in the Mesozoic Age.

Q. How many islands are there in the Fiji Islands? P. V.

A. The group consists of approximately 200 islands, of which about 80 are inhabited.

Q. Is it a fact that President Wilson drew the first number in the draft for World War Soldiers? F. R. H.

A. There were three drawings made for the draft during the World War. One was made for each registration. The first and second drawings were made by the Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker. The number drawn in the first drawing was 235 on July 29, 1917. The number in the second drawing was 246 on June 27, 1918. In the third drawing President Wilson drew the number which was 322. This was September 30, 1918. The first man to be selected for draft in the United States was Harry C. Gilbert of the District of Columbia.

Q. Where does the United States get its supply of Sulphur? B. T.

A. Nearly all of the country's sulphur supplies now come from the South. Thirty years ago practically all was imported from Sicily.

Q. How far away can thunder be heard? H. G.

A. Thunder is rarely heard at a greater distance than 12 miles from its origin.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—The vogue of monodies is spreading.

Last season one or two women, pointed to as "freakish," appeared at Broadway first night productions wearing their faintly clinched in the left eyecorset.

And there was Lowell Sherman, the elegant stage villain, who seldom appeared without one.

But upon a recent Monday night I beheld five women sporting monodies between acts of a big opening and was informed that, upon another night, four were glimpsed in a single row—all worn by men.

Now, since most fads and fancies start in and about Manhattan, be not surprised if a scourge of monodies is about to descend upon the land.

Don't laugh! They look as funny as they sound.

Yet did we not laugh a few seasons back when Greenwich Village alone adopted smocks, sandals and bobbed hair? Today every office building is beset with smocked stenographers, bobbed hair is commoner than long and understated shoes are sported by the "athletic" and "bachelor" girls of all ports.

Scores of fads, however, die young, if for no other reason than their uselessness. And many of these are never seen, but vaguely comprehended beyond Broadway.

The swaggar stick, for instance, was short-lived, though a few still affect a type of cane.

Those trick, mannish vests caught on with a few moment, but rarely was seen outside a few New York places. On the other hand, slave bracelets are to be seen at most smart occasions, but the trick anklets are revealed seldom if ever.

Campaigns for establishing a fad are most carefully planned. The efforts to popularize this or that are generally started by some agent who tries to induce a public figure to appear wearing it. If some prominent Broadway actress shows up at a fifty night club with some new-fangled bit of apparel, it's a moral certainty that scores of underlings will try to ape her. These in turn will be aped by someone else until the fad is established—or dies.

It is always a gamble with everything to gain and very little to lose on the part of the manufacturer.

OUTLINE MUSICAL PROGRAM FOR CITY TO COMMON COUNCIL

Aldermen, Meeting Informally at City Hall View Proposal With Favor

A favorable reaction to the proposal of establishing an instrumental musical program in Appleton was voiced by the common council Friday night, meeting informally at the city hall as a committee.

Although the committee did not take any action, a resolution urging adoption of the program probably will be introduced at the next regular council meeting Jan. 5. Practically all aldermen appear inclined to view the undertaking with favor.

If an affirmative vote is cast by the council when the matter is introduced, it is expected that the program will be put into effect next fall.

It would be operated entirely separately from the city school system, and a budget separate from that of the school budget would be provided.

Instruction in wind and stringed instruments would be made available to every talented student in every educational institution in the city, including the public and parochial schools and Lawrence college.

Ben J. Rohan, city superintendent of schools, and Dr. Earl Baker of Lawrence college, outlined the tentative program to the council.

Establishment of the system, it was pointed out, would give every child in all the schools an opportunity to love, appreciate, study and play instrumental music.

It would furnish band and orchestra instruments free of charge to children in public and parochial schools.

It would give instruction free of charge in band and orchestra instruments.

It would develop players who will eventually be "feeders" for the Appleton City band and proposed orchestra.

Lawrence college band, the junior-senior high school bands and orchestras.

These were some of the objects of the system to which the attention of the council were drawn.

Benefits of the program were outlined as follows:

It would create a music-loving city and add to the city's culture.

It would help solve the leisure time problem.

It would make instrumental music a vocation as well as an avocation.

It would furnish the college band and the band and orchestra in the junior-senior high schools with excellent instrumentation.

More than 100 instruments would be purchased, the estimated cost of which would be approximately $5,500. The estimated cost for two teachers is $3,500, and the estimated cost for band and orchestra books, sheet music, etc., is $1,000.

JURY CONSIDERING $12,000 DAMAGE CASE

Widow Seeks Damages for Death of Her Husband at Kimberly

The case of Mrs. Albert Kressin in which the plaintiff seeks $12,000 damages from the C. and N. W. railroad for the death of her husband, last March, went to the jury in circuit court at noon on Saturday.

Mr. Kressin, according to the story, died several hours after it is alleged he was crushed between a loading platform and a freight car on a siding at the Kimberly-Clark Co. paper mill at Kimberly.

With a companion the dead man was believed to have been either walking or talking when the accident occurred. It is believed they did not see the train or thought it had clearance.

The injured men were taken to the hospital where Mr. Kressin died shortly after the accident. His companion recovered.

DALLIN'S PEACE STATUE RESTORED FOR CHICAGO

Chicago — (AP) — Dallin's celebrated equestrian statue "A Signal of Peace" is about to be restored to Chicago.

The statue, listed first among Dallin's chief works including his widely known "Appeal to the Great Spirit" which stands in front of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, was originally located in one of the most conspicuous spots in Chicago, at Lincoln Park hillside close to the big bronze figure of General Grant.

For some unknown reason, this site was exchanged for an isolated location jutting out into Lake Michigan at the foot of Diversey Boulevard, where almost the only visitors have been marksmen intent on shooting the daylights out of clay pigeons.

Now a new bridge is extending the Lincoln Park shore drive, and hereafter Dallin's master production, an Indian on horseback giving "A Signal of Peace," will again be readily accessible to all Chicagoans.

18 BILLION STAMPS IS ANNUAL U. S. OUTPUT

Washington, — (AP) — The little postage stamp you use from time to time is one of a huge family.

There were more than 18,000,000,000 of them born in Washington last year, being sufficient for supplying each man, woman and child in the country with 160. They represented a face value of $450,000,000 and required 800 tons of paper and $70,000 pounds of ink in their manufacture at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Placed end to end they would girdle the earth eleven times. The cost of producing them was about 1 cent for each 125.

WHEN THE GIANTS BATTLED OVER EVOLUTION

The constitutionality of Tennessee's famous anti-evolution law will be passed on in the near future by the Tennessee supreme court, when the appeal of John T. Scopes from his conviction at Dayton, Tenn., more than a year ago, is heard. The law could be knocked out by an adverse ruling. Here are scenes recalling the famous trial. Above is a view of one of the court's outdoor sessions, with an inset of Scopes; below are the late William Jennings Bryan (left), as he appeared on the witness stand, defending "fundamentalism," and Clarence Darrow, as he looked while he was cross-examining Bryan. Darrow was Scopes' chief counsel, having volunteered for the job.

Madge Kendal, 77, Still Heeds Old Call Of Stage

London, — (AP) — Dame Madge Kendal, at the age 77, still heeds the call of the stage. She has agreed to play the juvenile role in a performance of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Haymarket theatre, as Ophelia in a production of Hamlet with Walter Montgomery in the role of the Danish prince. From then on she played most of the Shakespearean heroines and in every sort of classical and popular drama until 1911 when she retired. She made several tours of the United States with her husband in the 30's and 90's and was popular in such plays as "Marriage, Prince Karatoff," and "A Scrap of Paper."

In 1905 Mrs. Kendal appeared at the Haymarket in London, as Ophelia in a production of Hamlet with Walter Montgomery in the role of the Danish prince. From then on she played most of the Shakespearean heroines and in every sort of classical and popular drama until 1911 when she retired. She made several tours of the United States with her husband in the 30's and 90's and was popular in such plays as "Marriage, Prince Karatoff," and "A Scrap of Paper."

Mr. Odell, who is "old Odell" to members of the Savage club and his friends in London art circles, doesn't believe actors should retire. On his ninety-second birthday anniversary he visited the Savage club, gathered some of his gray-haired confidantes about him and inaugurated preparations for an entertainment to be given by the theatrical stars of long ago.

SELDOM MISSES BIG EVENT
Dame Kendal was one of the first stars approached.

"Of course, I will take the part," she replied. "We have been friends, my dear Odell, for more than 40 years."

Mr. Odell has decided that he will do a scene from Gilbert's "Daniel Druce." It is a Cromwellian play in which Mr. Odell in 1876 played the part of a royalist officer who fled the country.

Mrs. Kendal only recently became Dame Madge and the public scarcely has become accustomed to her title. In fact, she needed no title. Like Ellen Terry, her stage name is constantly in public prints. She is even robust than Dame Ellen and seldom misses a notable first night or any great gathering where representatives of the arts are assembled.

Dame Madge was the twenty-second child of William and Margaretta Roberts. Her mother was of Danish blood. Her father came of a British theatrical family which was well known in the amusement world for generations.

RETIRED 15 YEARS AGO
Mrs. Kendal was only five years old when she made her first appearance on the stage and played a repertoire of roles that included everything from Little Eva in Uncle Tom's Cabin to Shakespeare.

DON'T EXPECT PLEASURE ON COUNTRY ROADS

Whether Outagamie-co roads are open or not is purely a matter of individual interpretation of what constitutes an open highway, according to all available reports Saturday morning.

Motorists with sufficient courage to try to have reached Appleton from nearly every section of the county but several have made the drive in and then returned to their homes by train, it was discovered.

Busses are running in every direction but none could be found who would suggest any so-called pleasure driving over the weekend.

Roads between Appleton and Seymour are reported bad and to all intents and purposes much of the county is temporarily "snowed in" unless the use of runners is resorted to.

NEW FASHIONS A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN BEAUTY HINTS

WHITE IS LEADING COLOR FOR PALM BEACH WARDROBE; SPORT FROCK AGAIN LEADING TYPE; PRETTY DRESSES OF ORGANDIE ARE SEEN

BY HENRI HENDEL
NEW YORK—Cold weather brings fur coats and arctics to some women and organdies and gay sweaters to others, depending on their geographical intentions.

Since such an increasing percentage of women migrate to Florida or sit across to the European playgrounds on the Riviera to avoid the ice and snow, it becomes necessary to take Palm Beach wardrobe quite seriously at this time.

From a fashion point of view, Palm Beach clothes, the accepted generalization for all winter resort attire, are very important since they are harbingers of the spring fashions all over the country.

Paris designers now have a Palm Beach display which is quite as important as their fall openings. Here all the best points of the winter styles and all the new adaptations and trends for spring meet.

STYLES ARE COLORFUL

Color plays an important role in a wardrobe for the south. White is always the leader. Pastel shades and pure colors such as pale green, red, orange and clear blue are always lovely against a background of green foliage and blue sea. Grayed colors are less effective, and dull hues have no place at all.

Since out-of-door life is the rule, the sport idea prevails in all clothes, and even formal evening attire is less ornate and important looking than in a metropolitan environment. The simple one or two-piece frock of crepe de chine and the colorful jacket are almost a day uniform. And organdies and laces reach the zenith of their loveliness.

Patterned today are three creations for southern wear, which will be worn in New York and other fashion centers later.

Most practical is the sport frock with the coat of canary yellow, flat silk crepe trimmed with the standing collar of grosgrain ribbon which ends in a graceful cascade at the hemline and falls over the finely pleated white silk skirt.

With this is worn a knitted hat of bottle green trimmed with magenta and green grosgrain ribbon. The color treatment is very Parisienne, and yet there is a feeling for simplicity that suggests the American woman at her smartest.

Organdies are used in captivating combinations trimmed with lace, embroidery and ribbons, or untrimmied save for some brilliant sash or splash of color, unexpectedly appended.

HATS ARE WIDE

Of the two illustrated, both are very simple but knowing. The one with the dash is of salmon pink embroidered in a graceful wheat design, this being used on the sash as well as the frock. Hand embroidered scallops finish the skirt and the cape of the much abbreviated sleeve caps. A large picture hat of rose straw with a velvet bow of a deeper shade is an ideal choice of millinery.

White organdie is effectively embroidered in French blue in the other model, and drawn work is discreetly introduced in the front. The pointed skirt is scalloped in blue, and a white organdie flower at the waistline reveals an edge of blue. The large hat of periwinkle blue is untrimmied save for a satin banding and tailored bow on the crown.

Skirts continue to be short, but not painfully so. Hats are very wide as to brim and adroitly shaped as to crown.

THE SIMPLE CREPE DE CHINE FROCK AND COLORFUL JACKET ARE ALMOST A DAY UNIFORM.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

AS Coppy took the kiddie car, he said, "I'll now go scouting far, so everybody'd best look out, or else you may get hit." The others watched him scot along and then he seemed the wheels went wrong and Coppy took a fall, although it didn't hurt a bit.

Then up spoke Scouty, "That's too bad. You surely are a clumsy lad. You always make a blunder of what ever you try to do." And Scouty said, "I've had enough. This kind of riding's much too rough. Of course I fall a lot because I try more things than you."

Then came a dwarf who told the bunch he thought he had a happy hunch. "I'll go and get a cart," said he, "and pull you all about. Some other dwarfs will lend a hand and we'll give you a trip that's grand." This plan pleased all the Tynmites and they began to shout.

A wee express cart soon rolled out. The Tynmites all about, "Now take your time," the dwarf exclaimed. "There's room enough for all. Just sit right down and keep real still. We dwarfs will gladly wait until you all get fully settled 'cause we want no one to fall."

And such a time the Tynmites had. It surely made them all feel glad. The dwarfs began to pull them up a hill that looked real steep. But, very soon their strength was spent. The wee cart slipped. Away it went, and when the ride was over every one was in a heap.

Old Santa saw them take their spill. He laughed and laughed and laughed until his sides were aching badly. Then he shouted, "I'm afraid that you had best let carts alone until you have one of your own. What say we lie to music land, where pretty tunes are made?"

(The Tynmites visit the musical shop in the next story.)

Household Hints

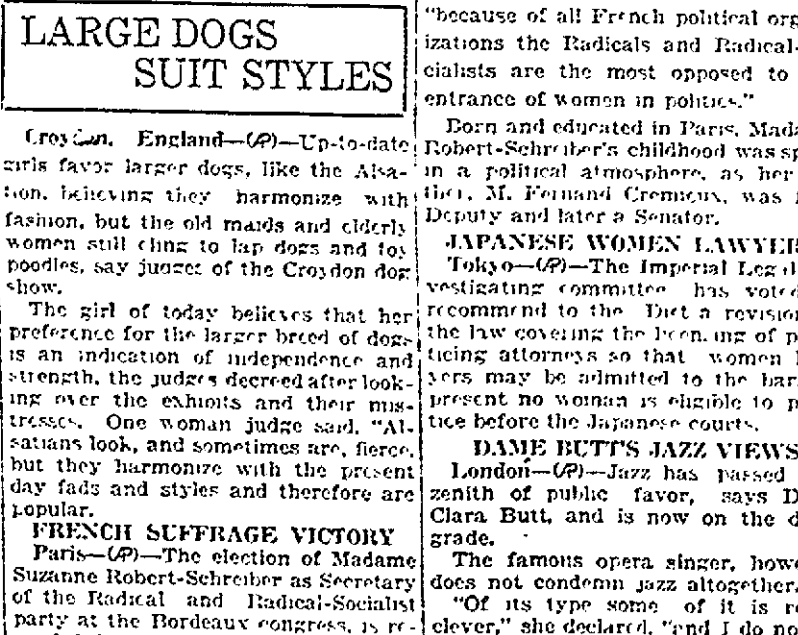

BEST WAY
When your tea kettle is not in use, empty it and keep it dry.

KEEP THE JUICE
One way to retain every bit of the juice in beefsteak is to brush it with blended butter and flour before you stick it on the broiler.

DON'T HURRY COOKING
When ever you are cooking cutlets or any mixtures in which eggs are the main ingredient, a low temperature is most satisfactory.

FOR GILT FRAMES
Clean gilt frames by covering with a cream of whitening and alcohol after wiping and brushing away all possible dust.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS--

When the kid sister takes her piano lesson her fingers work in harmony, but her mind doesn't.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Breakfast—Orange juice, cereal, thin cream, creamed dried beef on toast, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of tomato soup, croquettes, lima bean salad, bean rolls, floating island, date cup cakes, milk, tea.

Dinner—Fried rabbit, mashed potatoes, creamed celery, cole slaw, lemon sponge pie, graham bread, milk, coffee.

These little date cup cakes are especially nice for the holiday season. They are quite festive with their fruit and nuts but not too extravagant in their use of eggs and butter.

DATE CUP CAKES

One-third cup butter, 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup milk, 1 teaspoon ground orange rind, 1 cup stoned and chopped dates, 1 cup chopped walnut meats, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 1/4 cups flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder.

Toss dates in 2 tablespoons of the flour until thoroughly coated. Mix and sift remaining flour with salt, cinnamon and baking powder. Cream butter and sugar, beating thoroughly until creamy. Work the orange rind thoroughly into creamed butter and sugar. Add yolks of eggs well beaten. Beat hard and alternately add sifted dry ingredients, milk, and vanilla. Add prepared dates and nuts and mix thoroughly. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Oil and flour gem pans and half-fill with batter. Bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes.

FRAMED PRINT MAKES VERY PLEASING GIFT

Ordinarily one would hesitate to give a picture as a gift unless it were very choice. But with the almost universal interest in things American one could hardly go wrong in presenting a friend whose house one knew a little with a framed print. There is such a very general term to use that it would be helpful to make it more explicit.

For example the colored flower prints are delicate and yet very fresh in color. In picture and book stores these are to be had separately and very inexpensively having already been cut out of the old books and magazines. These you can frame yourself by buying the colored print binding and a glass. Ordinarily no mat is used. Such simple things as this are priced—finished—at about $5 or $10. There are of course all sorts of other subjects which can be treated in the same way.

THE WHAT AND WHY OF A "DIURETIC"

Diuretics are used to aid the kidneys in carrying on their necessary work of picking out of the blood stream certain poisons which must be regularly carried off in the secretions to preserve the system from self-poisoning. Foley Pills, diuretic, in constant use over twenty-five years, a reliable, valuable medicine, aid in regulating this flow and in keeping the system free of the lurking poisons that cause certain phases of ill health and bodily pains. Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. You may need them now. Sold everywhere.

JAPANESE WOMEN LAWYERS

Tokyo—(AP)—The Imperial Legal Investigating committee has voted to recommend to the Diet a revision of the law governing the licensing of practicing attorneys so that women lawyers may be admitted to the bar. At present no woman is eligible to practice before the Japanese courts.

DAME BUTT'S JAZZ VIEWS

London—(AP)—Jazz has passed the zenith of public favor, says Dame Clara Butt, and is now on the down grade.

The famous opera singer, however, does not condemn jazz altogether. "Of its type some of it is really clever," she declared, "and I do not altogether condemn jazz because it has at least had the effect of making English dancing popular. I do contend, though, that jazz now is most assuredly on the wane."

MILADY'S GOWNS MUST SPARKLE TO BE SMART

It begins to look like a brilliant season for brilliants. Hats, bags, slippers and gowns are being trimmed with bands of glittering little brilliants.

Evening slippers of brocade or satin are trimmed with tiny rhinestones which act as borders on ankle straps. These white or colored stones are sold by the yard in the art sections of department stores and since they are sewed upon cords they are easily attached to slippers.

LITTLE STONES POPULAR

The smallest stones are most desirable. While rhinestones are used on white or silver slippers, orchid stones on blue slippers, red stones on black, amber on gold or yellow brocade, etc.

Rhinestones may also be sewed on feather fans in similar manner. They are attached to the center of the feather. Many imported ostrich fans have such outlines.

Numerous are the velvet gowns with necks bordered with rhinestones. Often rhinestone banding ends in an applied bow at the front of the décolleté. Rhinestone buckles and ornaments are placed at the top of skirt drapery.

EVENING HATS SPARKLE

Evening hats of black velvet or black net are often trimmed in narrow bands of brilliants. Some black felt hat shapes for afternoon wear have brilliants studded across the front bandeau. These are put on in squares or in geometrical designs.

Envelope purposes for evening purposes are often entirely covered with brilliants in white or colors. These usually harmonize with the frock, keeping to such shades as white, green, pink or amber.

Garters are often trimmed with rhinestone ornaments or have a narrow strip of brilliants extending about the edges of slippers.

Evening corsages of large petaled chiffon flowers have rhinestones adorning the outer petals. These, of course, match exactly the color of the frock.

RABBIT VERY POPULAR FOR WINTER COATS

Paris—The rabbit is running the monkey, the seal, the mink and the little gray squirrel a hard race for popular approval with stylish Paris dressers.

Resembling anything but rabbit fur, the skins of the garden variety of bunny is in great demand for trimming this winter and so expert are fur handlers that it takes an experienced eye to tell gray rabbit from the highest price squirrel.

RABBIT RAINBOWS

It has the decided advantage of being easily dyed and rabbit of every hue of the rainbow is being used for trimming. White rabbit is a splendid substitute, at only a fraction of the cost of winter ermine, while rabbit fur dyed black floats in limousines past the boulevards in perfect imitation of the finest seal.

This is a winter of novelties in furs. The craze for "baby call" which brought an air of the great western plains to Paris, has been followed by a boom for baby bear fur. The market for baby bears is bullish and not enough of the mean be trapped to provide the soft brown and black fur so much desired by Parisians today. The result is that baby bear fur is more costly than mink or squirrel, although the novelty will soon be succeeded by another.

PLATINUM FOX
Platinum fox is another new favorite and is so scarce that it appears mostly in tiny bands as trimmings, generally for giving a touch of luxury to the popular coats in gray shaggy baby lamb. Silver, red, blue and beige fox are seen everywhere in the afternoons.

The reopening of the Russian fur trapping industry has allowed dealers in Paris to stock their shelves again, and next winter is certain to see a return toward the traditionally successful furs of squirrel, astrakhan and mink, whose prices in recent seasons have been prohibitive.

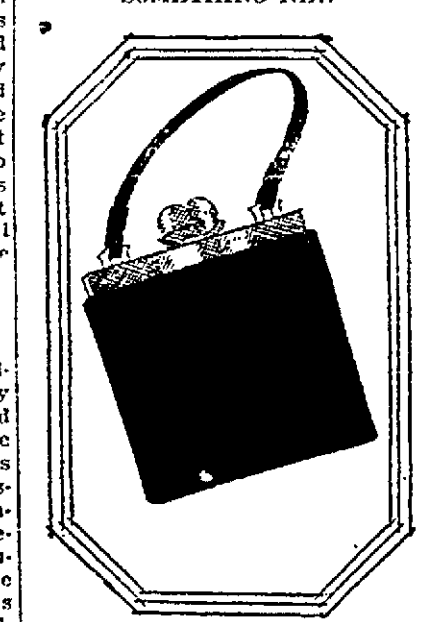

FASHION HINTS

HOOPS NO PENDANTS
Earrings in fashion are long pendants, or jeweled hoops. Jade and pearls are still most popular.

HIGH HATS
Not hat is really smart this season without a hint of the high crown, or draped tam effect, stolen by the designers from Africa.

Fashion Plaques

SOMETHING NEW

Designed by Lelong this bag of soft suede with a suggestion of modern art in its unusual metal top, is called the "Svar."

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

During the last few days before Thanksgiving—the date set for the wedding of eighteen-year-old Cherry Lane to Ralph Cluny, who, in spite of his distinguished appearance, looked every day of his sixty-eight years, the entire Lane family, with the exception of Cherry's father, came to know and to be very fond of the elderly bridegroom.

Cherry amazed them, Faith most of all, with her sudden change of manner toward him. Where she had been impudent, provocative, high-minded, she now, unaccountably, became demure and sweet, even tender toward the old man into whose keeping she was determined to give her lovely youth.

"It is almost possible to believe that she has fallen in love with him," Faith told Bob on one of their stolen drives. "It is pathetic to watch him. He's been coming to the house every night, you know. We've had him for dinner twice this last week, and he behaved with the most exquisite courtesy. He's quite mad about Joy, who climbs all over him like a little monkey. He brings her a gift every time he comes. He says—when Dad isn't listening, for Dad is awfully rude to him sometimes—that he is going to give Joy every advantage that a clever girl can possibly want. It's wonderful for Joy to have someone noticing her, thinking she's clever and so expert are fur handlers that it takes an experienced eye to tell gray rabbit from the highest price squirrel."

"I think Cherry is beginning to be impressed by his beautiful manners and by his unflinching good taste in everything, even in wedding decorations. It's really awfully funny to see them together, planning every detail of the wedding. He never tells Cherry that her taste is vulgar and unbecoming, but he gently leads her into the right paths. The truth is that Cherry is beginning to look up to him, a thing she never did before in her life. And it's good for him. He worships her, of course, because she is so deliciously young and lovely. This new gentleness and sweetness of hers is vastly becoming."

"Long," confided to Faith a few days before the wedding that "old Monkey-Cluny" had offered to set him up in business, with an automobile, accessories store of his own, the investment to be paid back out of the profits of the store.

"I told him I'd rather paddle my own canoe," "Long" concluded, "but it was darned white of him, and I hope Cherry treats him square."

Mrs. Lane was always tearfully old and grateful and awed in the old man's distinguished presence. The idea of having a rich old man for a son-in-law was overwhelming, but she surprisingly had tact enough never to refer to the future relationship in Mr. Cluny's hearing. Cherry, through her fiancé's generosity, had provided her mother with a very handsome and extremely expensive black satin dress and a sealskin coat, to be worn at the church service and the reception at the hotel afterwards. Only Jim Lane held out stubbornly and sadly against either Ralph Cluny's generosity or his friendship. With his own money he bought himself a decent new business suit and hat, gruffly repudiating Cherry's insistent offer of tailored-to-order dinner clothes.

"I've never had on a Tuxedo in my life, and I'm too old to put on tog now at another man's expense," he told her sternly, and not even Martha Lane's tearful pleadings could move him an inch.

Joy, who was to precede the bridal procession as a flower girl, was ecstatic over her own exquisite frock of white chiffon. Faith found her half a dozen times standing before the open closet door, staring at it with adoring grey eyes, her thin lips the hands clasped tightly as if in prayer.

"Do I look pretty in it, Faith?" she asked once, her small, sharp face, framed in its bell-shaped bob of straw-colored hair, avid for praise. "Mr. Cluny says I'm going to grow up to be a beauty. Cora Parsons says he's kiddin' me. Do you think he is?"

"You look adorable in the new dress, and Mr. Cluny's not kidding you for a minute. You have personality, darling, and more brains than any of the rest of us. You're going to make one of those dashing, smart girls, the kind of girl that just see them together, planning every detail of the wedding. He never tells Cherry that her taste is vulgar and unbecoming, but he gently leads her into the right paths. The truth is that Cherry is beginning to look up to him, a thing she never did before in her life. And it's good for him. He worships her, of course, because she is so deliciously young and lovely. This new gentleness and sweetness of hers is vastly becoming."

"Oh, Faith, if Cherry should change her mind and not get married now, I'd just die," Joy confided in a frightened whisper, her grey eyes devouring the dress adoringly.

"I don't think Cherry will change her mind," Faith answered slowly. "Not for the world would she have added that she had been praying night and day that Cherry would change her mind, no matter what the cost."

And so, the eve of her wedding day had dawned with Faith's prediction. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

LIVING CHRISTMAS TREE

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

IN my mail today came an advertisement from a guild in New York urging me to buy a "Living Christmas tree."

The idea, it would appear, instead of being a commercial enterprise, conceived for gain, is to do away with the annual slaughter of conifers at the Yuletide season and to send to customers trees with roots in tubs, that continue to grow.

Few of us concern ourselves with long distance disaster. If pine forests are being devastated and there is danger of the wood supply running out, we should worry! We're like the man who said, when he heard that the German army was within twenty miles of Paris and the death toll for two days numbered hundreds of thousands, "To the dickens with the war! I lost my best laying hen last night!"

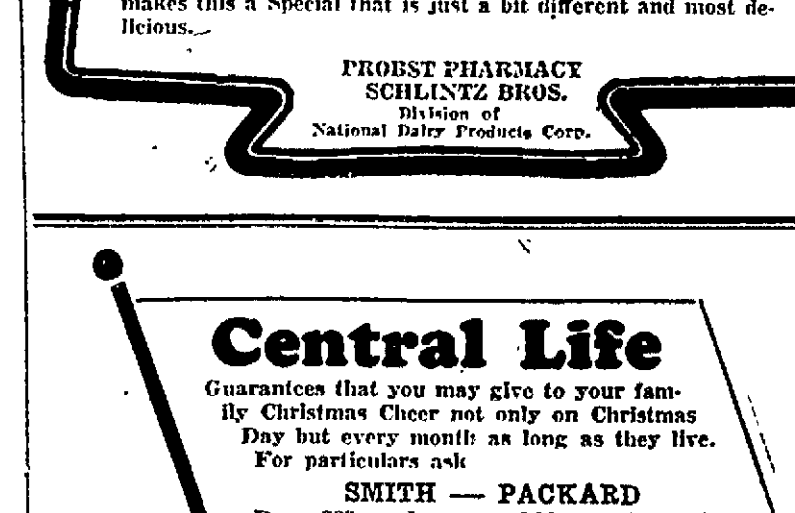

In the old days we could get enough wood to repair the back porch for fifteen dollars. Now it takes a hundred for the same amount. We have never learned forest conservation, like the Europeans, and not the least of the list of numerous causes of waste is the Christmas tree.

We always have been guilty of a Christmas tree in our family. We fell with the rest. It just wasn't Christmas without a tree. Each year I said apologetically to myself, "Oh, well! It's out anyway somebody will buy it!" And I'd have said it this year if the opportunity to buy a live tree that will grow outdoors later hadn't turned up. But I always felt guilty and tried to prop it up in the yard afterwards and pretend it was growing. I even tied pieces of suet on it for the birds—to extend its period of usefulness.

It seems that in the great north-west they can cut down a pine forest and in thirty years it will be fully replaced, if the lumberjacks leave one or two pine trees standing to the acre.

I hope our state Forestry Commissioners are looking after this. The population is increasing. Will the children of the year 2000 have Christmas trees? Or will they have to look over their books at illustrations of old customs? "The Old Fashioned Christmas and the Ancient Pine Tree."

It is difficult to make up our minds to disappoint the children. The idea of the living Christmas tree struck me as an excellent way out.

Pineapple (lithis) strewn through the richest of ice cream, makes this a Special that is just a bit different and most delicious.

Eight sets of ships, each one of which contained one of the letters of the word donkey, were hidden about the lobby and the boys hunted for a full set. Two boys completed the word. MILLER ELECTED FOOTBALL CAPTAIN AT ANNUAL BANQUET

Mayor and School Board Join in Praises for 1926 Grid Squad

Kaukauna—Willis Miller, center on the 1926 Kaukauna high school football team was elected football captain at the annual football banquet Friday evening in the high school building.

Letters were awarded to Captain Norbert Noie, Holms Whitman, Thomas Miskinski, Foster Crevier, Luther H. Lloyd, Peter Hanson, Willis Miller, Lloyd Derrus, Leonard McCortie, Clifford Kemp, Clarence Hishon, Byron Foster, Jack Verbeten, Alvin Kronforst, and Mayor Miller. Managerial letters were awarded to Charles Barisch and his assistant, John Taylor.

Coach William "Tiger" Smith reviewed the past football season and said that he believed it to be highly successful. Coach Smith said that he had expected to be "rattled something terrible" after that disastrous Appleton game, but those who talked with Smith praised his team and even his Appleton friends congratulated him. Smith said it would be a great thing if a small school the size of Kaukauna could defeat a large school only once out of every seven or eight times. Because of its larger size it should be an easy matter for Appleton to turn out a team capable of whipping Kaukauna.

Nothing much was said of the Oshkosh-Kaukauna game. "Tiger Bill" said and yet a school with only an enrollment of 250 students went out and beat a school in a city with a population of 3,000.

This victory was taken for granted. Smith said that he would lose seven times from this year's team, six of whom were regulars. Those who will graduate are L. Macorrie, Jack Verbeten, Miskinski, Whitman, Kronforst, Noie and Lehr. Rousing farewell farewells were given each one.

Mayor W. C. Sullivan expressed his appreciation of the team and scored townspeople for not showing more interest before the Appleton-Kaukauna game. Had more interest been shown the team would have known the city was behind it. Mayor Sullivan promised that next year there would be a big pre-game celebration which would include a large bon fire.

L. F. Nelson, president of the school board, said the board was proud of the boys. Although the team lost this year's Appleton-Kaukauna game, the 12-0 trimming it gave the college city team in 1925 was enough to hold him and the other members on the board for the next ten years. He said that he hoped it would be possible to have an auditorium and gymnasium built on the present building within the next few years. Mr. Nelson said he believed the boys were surely worth it.

Another speaker on the program was P. R. Maginnis, Y. M. C. A. secretary. Mr. Maginnis said the season was highly successful in his mind and that the boys trimmed every school of their size by a large score.

Olin G. Dryer, principal of the high school, presided over the meeting. Mr. Dryer spoke a few words for the faculty. He said that because of Kaukauna's strong athletic reputation it was hard to get games with schools of their size.

Visiting Y. M. C. A. Cagers Constant Threat but Lose, 17 to 14

Wrightstown—The Wrightstown city team defeated the Kaukauna Y. M. C. A. 17 to 14, in a hard fought game of basketball on the floor of the local auditorium. The local team took a 10 to 2 lead over its opponents during the first half. Kaukauna quickly tied the score at 12 to 12 during the second half. From this time until the final whistle, the outcome of the game was uncertain. Many of Kaukauna's points were made on long shots as the team the local defense, Farwell of Kaukauna was especially lucky, getting two of his three baskets from the center of the floor. Dr. Adegio, who played several years with the Wisconsin varsity, was one of the cleverest players of the opposing team, but he was closely guarded securing only two baskets.

Of the local players, Kussow made the most baskets, chalking up eleven points for the team. He made most of his baskets from within the free throw line as he was too quick to be covered by the opposing guards. Ingerson made a basket in the first few minutes of play but after that he was very closely guarded.

An exciting preliminary game was played by the Theonite Elevators and the American House cagers which the latter won 8 to 6. Theonite made one basket and Emmet Klister two for the Elevators while Van Zealand and H. Klister each scored one basket and Vanderheiden two for the Cagers.

ARMY PLANES ARE EQUIPPED FOR AIR AND WATER SERVICE

Planes for Good-will Tour to South America Mixture of Aerial and Nautical

San Antonio, (AP)—The amphibian planes, which the army is sending on a good-will tour around South America, are a curious mixture of the aerial and the nautical.

The machines are equipped with wheels, yet they have water pumps like any marine craft. The order,
"man the pumps," however, does not entail much labor on the part of the passengers. Should the planes be forced down in water and spring a leak, or ship a wave, or two, the pumps would be hooked directly to the motor and the water thrown out by the ship's own power.

The chief dangers, in such an event, would be that the waves would dampen the ignition system and stop the motor, or that the flyers would use up their supply of gasoline in pumping water from the hull.

HULL OF ALUMINUM
The hull, made of thin plates of an aluminum alloy, which is very light and strong, contains five bulkheads and will stay afloat for a long time.
It runs almost the entire length of the ship and is broad enough to ride comfortably in ordinary weather. At the front it is turned up like the toe of an old shoe, so that when the plane is in the air it looks as if it were flying on its stomach, rather than upon its wings.

Almost all of the fuselage is constructed of aluminum. The wings are made of two wooden spars, between which are aluminum ribs. Two small pontoons on the wing tips are designed to keep the wings out of water as much as possible in rough weather.

One of the most unique safety features in the plane is an automatic fire extinguisher under the engine hood.
The extinguisher consists of a small tank from which pipes lead to all portions of the motor or hood where fire is apt to break out. In case of fire the tank is turned on and automatically throws a chemical mixture which smothers the flames.

It is probable that arrangements

ed.

Several projects are under advisement for discussion of the committee

It holds you and after it is over you can't get away from it.

"The Clean Heart," or "The Cruelties of Life" is full of the human interest element. It depicts life as it is, dominating eccentric characters with all their eccentricities, breathing and pulsating with a realism seldom attained upon the screen.

Percy Marmont is cast as the overworked novelist and editor, breaks down under the strain. Otis Harlan portrays the jovial, care-free philosopher of the road, who gives his life in an attempt to redeem the hero. Marguerite de la Motte is seen at her best as the cheerful little country lass who tries to bring sunshine into the lives of those with whom she comes in contact.
There is a love element in the picture which presents the age-old theme from a new angle and which proves delightful entertainment.

THOUSAND PLAYERS IN NEW LA ROCQUE FILM

More than a thousand film players appear in Rod La Rocque's new De Mille starring picture, "The Cruise of the Jasper B." although only La Rocque, Mildred Harris, his leading woman, and Jack Ackroyd, playing the second lead, make in the scenes which provide the breath-taking thrills.

The action referred to takes place on a high mountain road where hair-pin turns make traveling, even at a slow rate of speed, exceedingly dangerous.
La Rocque and Miss Harris are in an old stagecoach with Ackroyd supposedly at the wheel. Ackroyd, however, is seated on top of the cab busy sealing a large box, unaware that the brake of the power buggy has slipped and the car is tearing down the crooked road at terrific speed.

There are many more thrills, equally as breath taking as this one, in La Rocque's new picture, which will be shown at the Fishers Appleton Monday and Tuesday, and in each the star, with Miss Harris and Ackroyd, play without the assistance of other actors.

FORMER KAISER AMONG RICHEST LANDOWNERS

Berlin, —(AP)—The settlement of Prussia with the Hohenzollern family places an income estimated at about $1,200,000 per year in the hands of William II and makes him one of the richest land owners in Europe.

What will William II do with this property? Under the house-law of the Hohenzollern, it is claimed, the former emperor as head of the dynasty holds patriarchal sway over all the members and can do out money and real estate to his relations as he sees fit. It is also persistently rumored that the exkaiser intends to hold the vast properties together for at least a decade, so that the Hohenzollern estate may not be diminished.

At the offices of the ex-emperor's legal representative, it is not confidently, felt that the estate can be kept in the former emperor's hands.

BLOOMER, OTT ELECTED LEADERS OF 1927 BLUE GRIDMEN

Star Tackle, Quarter, Tie For Captain Honor As Result Of Election

Extra Letterman Refuses to Vote When Frat Politics Decide Job

Seemingly following the custom set by Notre Dame's 1926 grid squad and other smaller football teams this fall, Lawrence college gridmen elected two men to lead their 1927 Bluebacks into battle next fall. The 1927 Lawrence squad will be captained from both line and a backfield positions with the election of Elmer Ott, Kaukauna, tackle, and Francis Bloomer, Appleton, quarterback.

Not because of any traditional feeling, but because the gridmen were unable to break a tie vote were the two men elected. Seventeen letters were awarded to Blue athletes this year but with the usual frat politics again playing a big part in deciding the captaincy, the tie resulted. Eight lettermen from one fraternity voted for their mate, while the other eight men handed together to support the man who was backed by the largest remaining number from one frat, a seventeen-man vote refused to cast.

The new leaders will alternate in running the team. Bloomer will call the toss one game and Ott the next, according to plans.

Bloomer, a graduate of Appleton high school, played halfback for the Orange for two years. He played the same position for the Lawrence freshman team last year. Two seasons ago he was a varsity at quarterback with the veteran Jake Zussman kept him from a steady job. This year he started and finished at quarter, his work improving steadily from the Marquette game until he was playing a great game when the season opened with the improved running, snappy passing and returning of kicks featured. Against Beloit he ran 97 yards for a marker on a short dropkick and the Bloomer to Jessup combination accounted for numerous Blue gains on passes.

Ott graduated from Kaukauna high where he starred at fullback and forward in basketball. In his freshman year he played in the rear wall, but his bulk and fight, together with a great speed for a heavy man, caused Ott to shift him to the line. In 1925 he alternated at guard with another player when the season opened but he was not in the line of last season. He gave him the regular berth shortly after midseason. He scored the only points made against Carroll all year when he downed an Orange runner behind the goal line in Lawrence's 8-3 defeat.

This year at a new position, tackle, his work has been excellent. He opened both offense and defense. He opened holes well and plugged them as well on defense. His work was featured by hard tackling and ability to beat his ends down on punts and get the tackles on opposing receivers. His pep encouraged the line in hard struggles and he was a constant reminder to be started in breaking through and blocking punts as well as usually falling on them. He also recovered several fumbles.

WHIPPET PINMEN WIN PAIR FROM SPECIALS

The Whippet bowling squad took a pair of games from the Zilske Specials in a match played Friday evening on the Eagle alleys, winning by 15 pins. The Whippets took the opener by 13 maps and added 34 in the second but the Specials came back for a 47 pin win in the final game.

A. Arndt of the losers was the star of the battle with high games of 221 and 223 and high series of 605. For the losers J. Brown had high series of 210 and high series of 571. Other 200 games went to Looper of the Specials with a 295 and R. Currie of the Whippets with the same score.

Midget Gopher Center Is Regular For 3 Years

MARQUETTE HOST TO BADGER QUINT

Meanwell's Hopes Play Second Prelim Game at Milwaukee Wednesday

Milwaukee—A crowd of close to 5,000 people is expected to be on hand next Wednesday night when Marquette university and the University of Wisconsin will renew basketball hostilities on the Milwaukee Auditorium floor.

Marquette cagers have been working strenuously for three weeks in preparation for the Wisconsin clash, while out at Madison Doc Meanwell and his Badgers have been hard at it since the opening of the fall semester and they will be all set not only to down the local quint but to pound right through the Big Ten circuit.

Wisconsin has an experienced aggregation of veterans, and Marquette's chances against the invaders are slim. Coach Frank Murray of the locals is seeking a big, sturdy backcourt guard, who can stand the gaff against a team like Wisconsin. The Herter boys, Capt. Eddie and Ery, are improving as forwards and much depend on them, with Floyd Razer, a flashy performer, on the sidelines with a bad ankle.

Connie Dunn is improving daily as a center, and with his shoulder again in repair should be ready to face Wisconsin. Oliver Dostaler, 215 pound football tackle, Frank Glaser, Marquette's pole-vaulter ace, and Jerry Hargan also aspire to the position. Football men compose the guard material, but there is not an experienced veteran in the lot.

CHUTE HIGH SQUAD BEATS BEAR CREEK

Little Chute—Little Chute High school basketball team added another victory to its belt Friday evening, when it defeated Bear Creek high school in a one-sided game at the region hall. The score was 30 to 2. The invaders were outclassed from start to finish. High scorer of the game was Vandenberg who caged nine field goals. Versteegen added three and two free throws. The Chutes now have two wins over Bear Creek and one over Hillcrest, losing only to West De Pere. The next game is with the Alumn team on Wednesday, Dec. 26.

AMERICAN RUNNERS WILL RACE INDIANS

Mexico City—American distance aces will have a chance to compare their speed with Mexico's marvelous Indian runners, who recently covered 100 kilometers (62.14 miles) by road in the record time of nine hours and 31 minutes. The Indian runners are going to tour all the principal American cities, according to plans under way.

The Boston marathon next spring and a competitive run inside the New York Polo Grounds are suggested. While the Indians' power of endurance has been tested, there is great concern over the effect the lower Atlantic seaboard and other sections of the United States would have on their lungs compared with the high altitude of the native place.

The Tarahumara tribe of Indians, to which belong the two record-holding runners, Tomas Zafra and Leoncio San Miguel, makes its home in Chihuahua, one mile above the sea level.

CHICAGO "Y" FIVE EXPECTS HARD GAME WITH LAWRENCE MEN

Triangle Manager Hopes for Win in Battle at Green Bay on Dec. 30

Green Bay—"One of the hardest games on our schedule" is the way the Chicago Y. M. C. A. college basketball team characterizes its coming game with Lawrence college which will be played on the floor of the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. Thursday, Dec. 30. Daily practices are being held by the quintet from the Windy City in preparation for their encounter with the Blue cagers, and reports from Harry D. Edgren, graduate of the college in '24 and present athletic coach at the institution, indicate that his squad will be primed for action when the opening gun sounds a week from Thursday.

Various collegiate opponents will be met by the Chicago collegians this season during their annual winter tour, the first game to be played in Milwaukee against an unnamed opponent on Dec. 29. Other games have been scheduled for the cities of Superior, Duluth, Minneapolis, St. Paul, La Crosse and Madison, and all of the games will be staged against teams of calibre.

"We realize," declared Coach Edgren recently, "that in Lawrence college we are meeting a team which twice won Midwest and Wisconsin collegiate basketball honors, but in spite of Lawrence's splendid record in basketball of recent years, we hope to show them something new in the game."

Edgren is well known in midwest sporting circles, having played football, basketball and baseball for four years at the Y. M. C. A. college. He starred at right halfback for the grid team, defeating Western State Normal of Kalamazoo in 1921 almost single-handedly by intercepting a forward pass on his own three-yard line and galloping through the entire opposition team 97 yards for the only score of the game.

Edgrenations are that the Bay "Y" gymnasium will be filled to capacity to witness the first intercollegiate athletic contest ever to be held in Green Bay. With both squads working daily to perfect shifts, tricky attacks that will outguess their opponents, and with both coaches sending out experienced coaches of veterans, an exhibition of courtshipmanship should be displayed when the two teams clash.

BELOIT, LIKE BLUE, NEEDS VET CENTER

Bohler, Christoph Must Meet Pivot Problem; Orange Defense Is Weak

The problem of Lawrence college's basketball team and its coach, George Christoph, the development of a center to work in the middle range of offense and defense is echoed by one of the Blues most ancient rivals, Beloit. Asports from the state-line city say that Bohler's big problem this winter is a good pivot man.

At forwards Beloit has two stars of last year's squad Fitzgerald and Garrigan while Capt. Vandoloh, now out with grid injuries, Darlings, Gates and others are back guards. At Lawrence Briesse and Capt. Grove are vet guards while Heldman, Clark and Hilton are good forwards. The problem is to fill the place of Ashman, crack center of the last two years. Sund, a regular a few years ago, probably will fill the bill.

ORANGE DEFENSE WEAK

As expected, the Blues have problems, so have Coach Joseph Shields at Appleton high school. In spite of a wealth of promising material and vets, Shields' troubles lie in defense. With a speedy offense working in great style and guards of good calibre, the Orange mentor is finding plenty of trouble getting a defense to match his offensive power.

The defensive second string is slow and ineffective, against speedy thrusts of the quick-moving second string forwards and it has plenty of trouble stopping their drives to the basket.

BELOIT CAGE TEAM BATTLES OSHKOSH

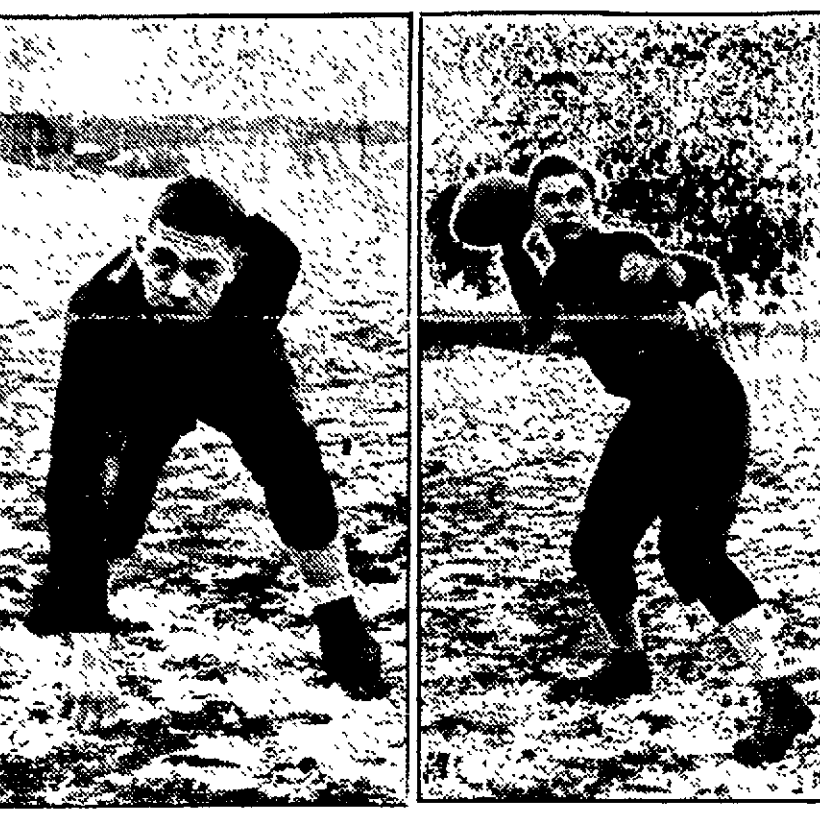

Bohler Gives Gold First Test of Season in Two-day Card at Oshkosh

Beloit—The Beloit College basketball team will meet its initial test against the state teachers at Oshkosh, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Oshkosh Normal is represented by a strong team each season and Coach Bohler of Beloit expects no set-up for a starter but he believes that, win or lose, the contests will be of advantage to the Beloiters.

The past practice sessions have not as yet developed a working combination, but most likely that Garigan and Fitzgerald will start the first season games as forwards. Major, a sophomore, looks as a corner for center position, long and rangy and a fair shot. Dupee and Myers appear as the best guards and are expected to start the first game.

Captain John Vandoloh whose arm injury received in football has kept him out of practice thus far is not likely to be able to perform in the games at Oshkosh.

LAWRENCE GRIDDE RS ELECT TWO CAPTAINS FOR SEASON

Two captains, Elmer Ott, Kaukauna, tackle, and Francis Bloomer, Appleton, quarterback, will lead the 1927 Lawrence college grid squad. The two men tied for the leadership in a vote taken by 1926 Blue lettermen Friday.

Badgers, Hoosiers Have Star Shooters Of 1926

Chicago—(AP)—Wisconsin and Indiana, the latter the premier scoring team of the Big Ten conference last year, have retained a larger share of their basketball sharpshooters for the campaign beginning after the holidays than any other squads of the Big Ten conference.

On the floor at Madison, trying for the Wisconsin team are men who shot 294 of the Big Ten's 298 total last year while the Indiana squad has in its makeup men who shot 310 of the 379 points this high scoring team made. Following these, Michigan has 180 of its 354 points to count upon this year while Northwestern has 174 of its 324 points.

Chicago, the low scoring team of the conference has 184 of its 223 points, while Iowa the low scoring member of the quartette that tied for titular honors has 171 of its 249 points. Illinois has 132 of its 282 points but 55 of these points represent two players who will not represent the Illini in the floor game until the beginning of the second semester.

In the final three places, as far as retained scoring power is concerned, are Minnesota with 110 of its 275 points; Purdue, one of the title holders with 95 of its 339 points and Ohio state with 84 of its 315 points. About half the squads retain players that were in games last year but failed to tally a point.

That scoring power of the previous year, retained for a new campaign, is not a certain indication of success is shown by the fact that Illinois retained on its last year's squad men who shot 262 of its points of the year before yet landed in a tie for fifth place, while Iowa had but 115 points of its previous campaign represented but tied for first place.

Against this, however, is the record of Indiana and Purdue, next to Illinois in the number of points retained at the beginning of the last campaign and among the title holders, while Chicago and Wisconsin retained little more than 100 points and were far down the list of teams at the end of the seasons schedule.

The scoring power of conference teams as represented by last years point makers follows:

Indiana: Becker 199; Krueger, 33; Sibley 81; Winston 14; Correll 9; Derr 4.

Not on squad: Sponsler 64; Jones 5—69.

Wisconsin: Behr 102; Hotchkiss 55; Andrews 42; Morkel 40; Powers 30; Barnum 15; Nelson 9—294.

Not on squad: Harget 2 Brooks 2; Michigan: Harrihan 82; Chamber 85; Joe Azzarelli—He was one of the outstanding victims of the famous heart punch and has not been right since that fight.

Hilario Martinez—Another outstanding victim. Martinez admitted after the bout that it was the heart punch that flattened him much to the surprise of the sport writers.

Frankie Schafer—Petrolle knocked him out in the first round with two punches, a right to the heart and a left to the jaw. It was the heart punch again.

Johnny Rocco—In the first round Petrolle landed a right to the heart and from then on it was just a question of time.

Johnny Adams—The boy who beat Ace Eubanks and just defeated Tommy O'Brien at Los Angeles last week was knocked out by Petrolle at Chicago. It was the heart punch that stopped him.

Billy Petrolle To Get Chance At Light Crown

Milwaukee—Billy Petrolle, the Far-west Express, who meets Les Murray, the Australian champion here Monday night in the feature event of an all star card at the Auditorium, will get a chance at the lightweight title in January in New Jersey, providing he whips the slogging Kangaroo from the Apodotes.

Petrolle is without doubt the best lightweight in the game today with the possible exception of Murray. As a result the Milwaukee fight, featuring these two 135 pound stars is a real championship battle Frank Mulken, matchmaker of the Cream City A. C. landed the bout only because he was willing to dig deeper than any of the Broadway impresarios.

Terminated to follow the standard set by the Taylor-Sanger show, and outbid him out of practice thus far is not likely to be able to perform in the games at Oshkosh.

Several indigible men, Anderson, Battino and Rose will greatly strengthen the Gold at the start of the second semester.

The two Oshkosh games will give the Beloit mentor a good chance to work up a good combination for the opening conference game with Monmouth on Jan. 5 at Beloit.

KIMBERLY CAGERS BEAT OLD RIVALS

Squeeze Out 24-23 Victory Over Strong Nekoosa-Edwards Basketeers

Kimberly—The K. C. Athletics traveled to Port Edwards and handed the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper Co. squad a real battle, winning the game by a one-point margin, 24 to 23. Nekoosa-Edwards is the squad that put up such a battle in the Northeastern Wisconsin Amateur Tournament last year when they were defeated by Kimberly 23 to 12. Williams started with 5 field goals while Koll and Scheurle caged 3 each.

This is the last game to be played by the Papermakers before they meet the strong West Bend team in a Wisconsin State Basketball League game at the Kimberly Clubhouse on Tuesday. West Bend is leading the league and a real battle should take place when these two squads meet for the first place.

YOUTHFUL GOLFER SHOWS MUCH COLOR

Lighthouse Harry Cooper Not Only Has Color but Displays Ability

Ladies and gentlemen, allow me to present a golfing sensation who will before many in the headlines within the next few weeks defending his $10,000 title in the California open, the first major event of the ripening links season.

Step right up, Lighthouse, and bow for the people.

This is Mr. Lighthouse Harry Cooper. He has more color than Al Jolson has burnt cork and the way he is luring the galleries away from the established stars is nothing if not a crime.

Lighthouse Harry has color—PLUS. He's a good-looking dude and I guess his meanderings around Hollywood might have smeared him up a bit with Elmer Glyn's "it" that sure gets 'em. Women flock after him on the fairway in droves, and don't kid yourself but what the gents do, too, because the kid has A-ability.

There'll be S. R. O. signs tacked up on the El Caballero clubhouse at Los Angeles Jan. 6, for on that date all the country's leading par clubbers will be assembled to run for the 10 grand and Light horse Harry's title. There will be an international flavor to the classy field in the lean and gaunt Cassius of England, Mr. George "Lightning" Duncan.

Christmas Day, Duncan and Cooper will start a 72-hole exhibition match, a nice juicy side bet just as a warm-up.

Lighthouse Harry is only 22. He is little, slender, and graceful, with a game full of fire and dash. He just copped the $5,000 open at Monterey. He is English-born, although he spent most of his life in Dallas, Texas, before signing up with the Kansas City Country Club.

He won the Texas open when he was 18, and he commands the same awe to the west and Pacific regions that Bobby Jones does in the south. This Light-horse gentleman came into bloom recently, suddenly, showing his greatest year when he won the California open with four brilliant rounds, averaging better than 71. He had to beat George Von Elm to do it, too.

Cooper has a fast full swing with a tremendous pivot. He gets fine length and plays every shot not only crisply but savagely, preferring a full mashie for 170 yards rather than an easier mashie iron.

His mental slogan is "Hit the ball and hit it hard!"

In the way of dress he is on the dapper side, carrying with him the flame and enthusiasm of youth.

Color, color, personality and blazing genius—what'll it be, gents?—he has it and I don't mean funny pictures.

Hagen, who is that egg? Sarazen? Shucks, don't show your dragging up.

Cooper? That's the man. Lighthouse Harry Cooper. He has more color than a paint shop.

GRID ELEVEN MAY SOON BE TWELVES

Football teams should be increased to 12 men.

That recommendation was offered by W. B. Holton of New York, chairman of the Wesleyan Alumni council, to delegates at the college league meeting at Middletown, Conn.

Under the new suggestion the 12th man is to remain on the sidelines and in charge of all substitutions, for physical injuries and coaches should be kept off the field.

MANY STAR LINKSMEN PLAY MIAMI COURSE

Miami, Fla.—Gene Sarazen has arrived here for the winter and he says he expects many of the leading golfers will be at hand for the Miami open championship and the Miami Beach opening. Willie Klein, 1925 winner, will be on hand and so will Jack Hutchinson, Jim Barnes, Al Espinoza, Al Watrous and Walter Hagen.

Chicago—Rudy Stein, New York, beat Mike Dundee, Rock Island Illinois on foul (1).

LOIS GIVES LITTLE ADOPTED SISTER DANCING LESSON

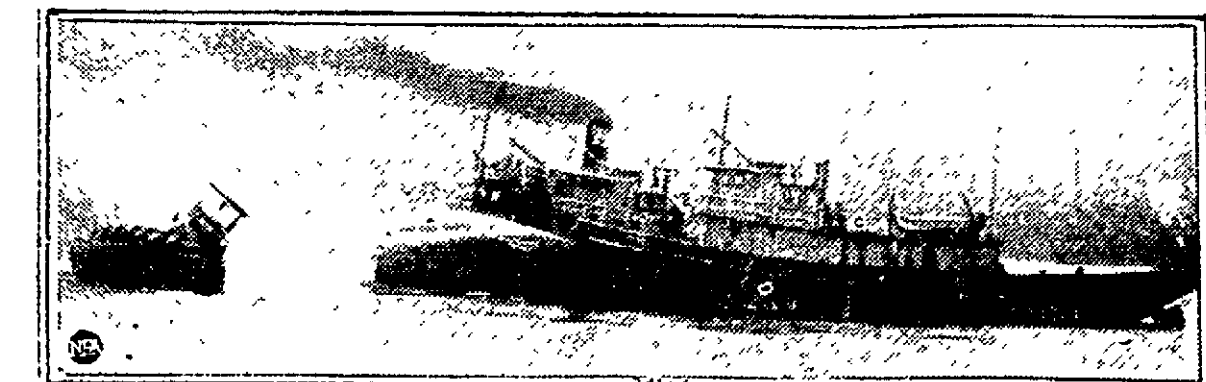

In the kitchenette of a small New York apartment, "plain Mrs." Arnold Rimmann has found the happiness which eluded her as wife of the ex-kaiser's son, Prince August Wilhelm, whom she divorced. "I have love now, and a chance to work at my painting," she explains. Observe the marked difference between the expression of contentment she wears at the range and the severe dignity of her countenance in court attire.

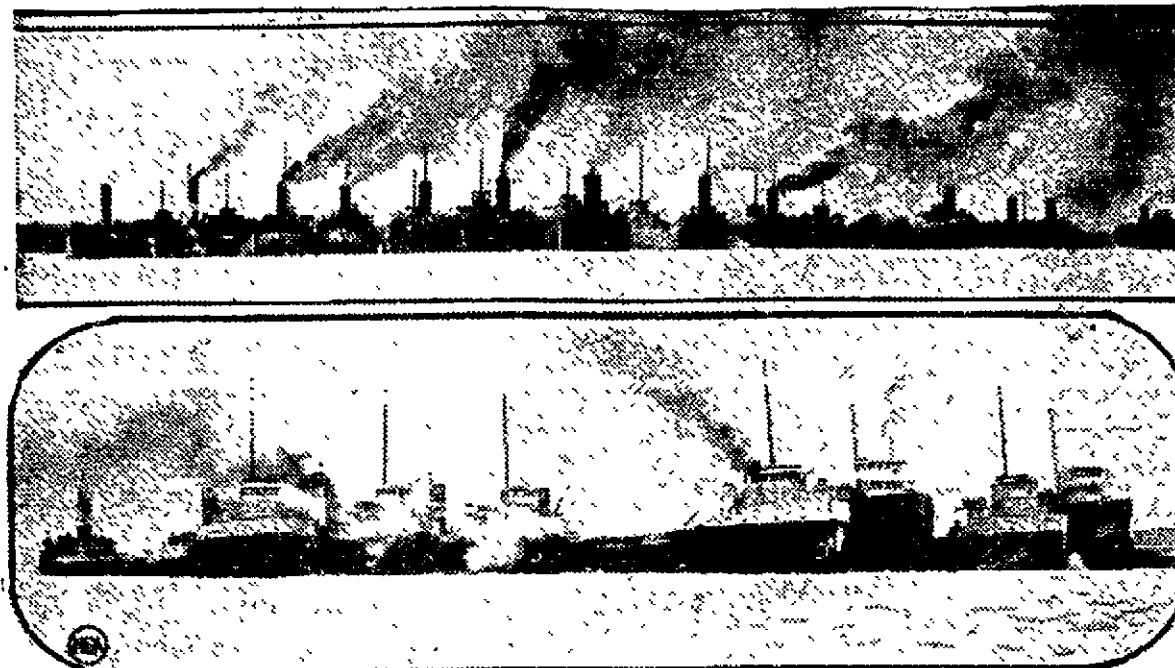

By outdoor practice on snow-fringed board track the Columbia University middle-distance men condition themselves on South Field for the indoor season in New York. Left to right: Ed. Brouse, 2 miles; C. K. Hamilton, half-mile, and Adolf Loz, mile.

Every year students at Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, Okla., hold a Harvest Festival and crown the most popular girl queen. Here's this year's—Miss Edris Abernathy, of Altus, Okla.

A tin lizzy could have gone far on the petrol lost when fire destroyed this gasoline barge on the Schuylkill river at Philadelphia. One member of the crew was severely, perhaps fatally, burned and a second could not be found after fireboats finally subdued the flames.

These two views show a few of the 140 steamships that were locked in the ice in the St. Mary's river, between Lake Huron and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., when a sudden cold wave struck the Great Lakes in the midst of the last rush of the navigation season. At the time this picture was taken it was feared the boats would be held in the ice until spring.

It was for sweet charity's sake that Miss Nan Filler, Philadelphia social registerite, arrayed herself in this fetching costume. She was one of the city's younger social stars chosen to entertain at an annual Charity Ball.

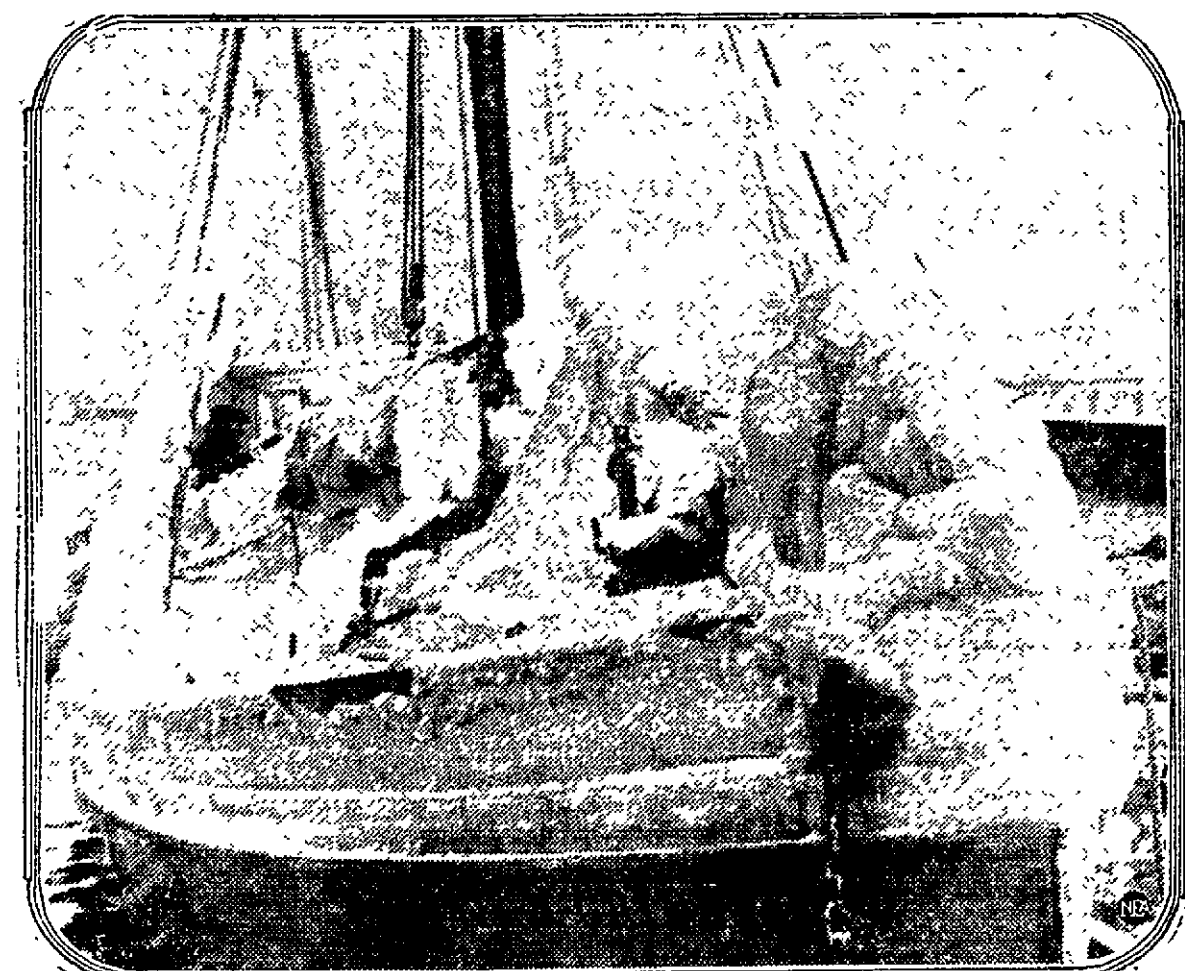

That Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten is to receive a half-million dollars to desert from his separatist suit against the former Milkmaid Rogers was the report when the trial in New York was adjourned for five weeks. Custody of his young son, Peter, is the prime object of Salm's claim. This is the first picture taken of the two since the count returned to the United States.

Miss Sarah Frazier, called "Tennessee's Lady Astor," will be the only woman member present when the Tennessee legislature meets this winter. She was elected from Hamilton county—the first woman legislator from that county, and the fourth ever elected in the entire state.

Though Lois Moran, the motion picture actress, leads a busy life and is in great demand for pictures, she has time to give a daily dancing lesson to her adopted sister, little Betty Moran. Both recently sailed for Egypt where they will master the oriental dance on its native heath.

What a few hours' bucking a snow-laden gale at sea did to the lobster s'mack Grace M. Cribby was evident upon her return to Boston Harbor. It took axes, elbow grease and the sun many hours to free the vessel of her unwonted refrigeration.

Gertrude Ederle is trying to massage "crick" out of her neck after a plunge into the Pacific.

Dessie Freeman is only 16, but she is manager of a large hotel in Harlingen, Texas, and owns more than $20,000 worth of property. She got her start by selling hosiery. Boys? "They're not interesting," she says.

Prince Eitel Friedrich, son of the former German kaiser, is shown here in the magnificent robes of the grand master of the aristocratic order of St. John—but he can't wear 'em any more. He lost the job because his wife divorced him.

Unlike lightning, Mr. D. Cupid often strikes more than once in the same place. If he's ever struck as many times in a single spot as in the Mayrovitz family—of Philadelphia, love's legends contain no mention of it. Half of these principals of five matches, which are to culminate in marriage on as many successive Sundays, are related. The bonedicts and their fiancées are (left to right), Louis Mayrovitz and Sarah Now; Charles Mayrovitz and Rose Friedman; Benjamin Mayrovitz and Ida Bernholz; Rabbi Winokur, the Mayrovitz' uncle, who is to perform the ceremonies; Pauline Mayrovitz and Maurice Rich and his sister, Molly Rich and Martin Hopkins.

LITTLE STORE IS STOCKED UP WITH CHRISTMAS GIFTS
Goldie Lays in Supply to Meet Demands of Holiday Shoppers

A fine array of Christmas articles suitable as gifts for Dad, brother or sweetheart may be seen at Goldie's Appleton's little store with the big stock at 105 S. Appleton-st. For the past month fresh supplies of gifts, some of which are out of the ordinary, are on display to help the perplexed gift buyer solve the Christmas problem.

Pipes of every description, make and shape are included in this gift line. From the old reliable corn cob with its wooden stem to meerschaum pipes with pure silver stems are on display. Many fancy shaped and novelty pipes are also on hand. Cigarette and cigar holders, cases, automatic cigar lighters and tobacco cases may also be purchased here.

In addition to these smoking supplies a complete line of tobacco and cigars are kept in airtight and well ventilated cases.

Other suitable Christmas gifts for men are shaving sets, consisting of a mug, brush and mirror, razor sets, tobacco pouches, fountain pen and pencil sets and many novelty surprise gifts.

One of the newest and most popular articles with the men patrons of Goldie's is a new Turkish water smoker. This consists of a small bottle which is partly filled with water. The bottle top is equipped with parts which will allow the smoker to use cigarette, cigars or tobacco. A long rubber tube fitted with a mouthpiece is used in drawing the smoke through a glass tube, into the water and then out the tube. The refreshing satisfaction of good smoke comes to the user without the usual accompanying biting tongue and unpleasant aftertaste.

LESS LUMBER BUYING THAN USUAL THIS TIME OF YEAR

In its current market review the American Lumberman, Chicago, says: "Business in lumber has continued its seasonal decline, and there appears to be even less buying than there usually is at this time of year. The slowness of business must be looked upon principally as a tribute to the quickness of transportation, the reliance of lumber distributors on this being most evident as they approach their year end inventories, where statistics are available they show that retail yard stocks are much lower than they were at a corresponding period last year—as much as ten percent lower in the case of Northwest yards. There appears little room for doubt, however, that the industry has another year of good business ahead of it, for construction contracts are ahead of last year's record. The total for the first ten months of 1926 was six percent above that for the same months of 1925, and the November contracts were percent larger than those for November of 1925."

Prices of lumber have evidently reached their low point, and mill sales managers show very little interest in offers of orders at concessions. Production has kept at a good level so far, largely due to continuance of operations on the West Coast. Operators there, however, are laying plans for an extended shutdown beginning with the Christmas holidays, and it appears certain that these will be carried out, for the reason that the open market loggers will close their camps Dec. 15 about sixty days. With log stocks reduced and log prices perhaps advanced, there will be little inclination to run as long as the market is in its present weak condition. Shingle prices had been much too low, but the recent shutdown of the shingle mills has already brought about an advance of five cents in the principal grades, with other mark-ups predicted.

Total production of the principal softwood mills during the week ended Dec. 4 was about five percent below normal, but orders were eighteen percent below the production. For the year to date, however, shipments have been in excess of the cut. Southern pine business for the week was fifteen percent below production, and West fir bookings were twenty-four percent below production. The additions to mill stocks must be regarded as small, especially in view of the demands that must be met early in the new year because of the condition of distributors' stock.

Business in hardwoods is slow. Mill stocks are not large, however, and bad weather is reducing the southern output, so that prices with few exceptions remain firm. Industrial users are holding down their stocks, so that good business is predicted for early in the new year, with real activity following the annual automobile and furniture exhibitions.

DUTCH HEAR RADIO BY CUTTING IN ON PHONE

The Hague—(P)—Holland's capital offers telephone users the benefit of radio programs without the assistance of a special radii set.

All telephone subscribers have to do is insert a plug into a contrivance attached to his instrument, and he can immediately listen to the English and French radio services. The ordinary telephone service is not interfered with. A call automatically cuts the radio off and connection is re-established when the call is finished.

Babson More Optimistic
On Bonds Than On Stocks

Babson Park, Mass.—Many people are debating as to whether or not to make their bond purchases as usual at the first of next year. Bonds have gone up so much the past six years that many investors are hesitating in their purchases. When Mr. Babson was today interviewed on this subject his reply was as follows:

RECENT BOND PRICES
"Bonds saw their highest prices at the beginning of the present century and the decline was almost constant down to the middle of 1920 when the average of twenty active bonds stood at a figure showing a yield of 6.7 per cent. From the middle of 1920 to October, 1922 there was an abrupt rise in prices which brought down the yield of this group to less than 5 per cent. This rapid rise was followed by a price decline in 1923 bringing the yield up to about 5 1/2 per cent. Since then there has been a slow but constant increase so that today this same group yields about 4.60 per cent. This means that the same bonds which could have been bought at a 6.70 per cent basis in 1920 could now be sold at 4.60 per cent basis. This is equivalent to an average increase in price of between 15 and 20 points and an average decline in yield of 2 1/2 per cent. 2.10 per cent off of 6.70 per cent is equivalent in reduction of yield to about 30 per cent."

"It is always dangerous to figure on prices comparisons. Prices are always relative and what I have already stated does not indicate either a decline or further increase in prices. The only safe method is to compare bond prices with business conditions by plotting bond prices on a chart showing business conditions. There is a distinct relationship between these two. Bond prices generally decline during a period of great prosperity when money becomes tighter, and bond prices advance during a period of depression when money becomes easier."

One thing in favor of bond prices at the present time is that the recent advance has been steady and steady. The opinion of the best banker seems to be that bond prices will remain steady through 1927 unless some catastrophe takes place.

COMMODITY PRICES
"Commodity prices are a great factor in determining interest rates and hence in determining bond prices. The great decline in bonds extending from 1900 to 1920 was accompanied by an almost constant rise in commodity prices during the same period. Today many economists believe that the world is in a period of declining commodity prices which may continue for 20 years, more or less. If so, it would be only natural for interest rates to continue low and bonds to continue firm with prices further rising in price. To refer again to the bond averages, this same group which now sells to yield 4.60 per cent sold to yield only about 4 per cent some 20 years ago."

"Another factor in favor of continued firm bond prices is the tremendous amount of money in the hands of institutions and corporations at the present time, which is being increased by funds being sent over here from abroad for investment. Although the man on the street today has his money in an automobile and the woman has her money on her back and both have very little in their pocket yet, they are laying out had such surpluses before. This results in easy money rates and firm bond prices. How long the situation will continue nobody knows; but unless some catastrophe happens abroad I see nothing to indicate an immediate change."

FINANCIAL INDIGESTION
"The principal factors in this country to fear are that too many bond issues will be put out in this country and that something may happen which will tend to upset the situation. The first fear tends to cure itself; because when too many bond issues are put out, the demand for bonds naturally recedes."

Probably the vast number of bond issues that have been put out in the past three years has tended to keep the bond market from going to unnatural heights. Moreover, it should not be forgotten that a large portion of these bond issues are for refunding rather than for new construction. This has tended to improve rather than harm the situation by relieving banks of commercial paper and putting corporations in a strong position in the case of a panic. The current talk for greater government state and municipal economy is also tending to retard the issue of too many bonds which in turn keeps the bonds already issued on a firm basis.

"I am somewhat worried about the present attack on prohibition. Without discussing whether or not prohibition is the best means of solving the liquor problem, we all must admit that liquor is a great economic curse. Probably no one thing has been responsible for so much poverty, crime, disease and waste as liquor. Not only has the waste of American people been greatly decreased through prohibition, but the economy, efficiency and savings have been increased. There is no doubt but that prohibition has been a real factor in helping the present financial situation. This has been possible of course by the reduction in drink consumption, especially among the real producers of this country. These who are interested in prosperity, and as righteousness will allow change which will bring back the nation or its equivalent."

GENERAL OUTLOOK
"The consensus of opinion seems to be that 1927 will be a quieter year than 1926, with declining stock market prices. Personally, I believe that 1927 will see lower stock market prices than we have seen during 1926. As to the future of the bond situation, however, economists are disagreeing. Usually bond prices decline before stock prices. When this is not the case they decline together. Moreover, this would be true today."

MONEY PUT OUT AT INTEREST GROWS AT TREMENDOUS RATE

Anyone Can Get Rich by Investing Money and Reinvesting Interest

"There is no more worth while or more enticing habit than that of accumulating interest bearing investments," says Albert E. Timme of Timme & Company, dealers in bonds. "The man who saves for such a commendable end as the purchase of a home accumulates his purpose only by transferring his savings into another form of property which is non-productive, and of course, the man who withdraws his savings from an automobile has really not been saving at all; he has merely been accumulating for one deferred expenditure. That may be justifiable, yet it is not thrift and it accomplishes no permanent good. The systematic saving of money for investment in sound securities, however, grows miraculously by the thing it feeds on. There is nothing in the world of finance more astounding than the rapidity with which money accumulates at compound interest. Liking that accumulation to a snowball rolling downhill is true, perhaps, but it is a simile that cannot be improved upon. Both in speed and volume it increases momentarily after once it is given a fair start."

The following examples of what happens to small amounts when subjected to the magic of this compounding of interest will perhaps prove interesting and sufficiently impressive to carry home the point, even though they are a trifle bizarre.

Had the famous widows mite (which we shall suppose to have been equivalent to our penny) been invested at 5 per cent semi annual interest when it was contributed some 1900 years ago, instead of being used for current needs of the Temple, it would today have amounted to a sum so large we have no words to express it—a sum tremendously greater than all the money in the world. It would have grown to $65,404,100,000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

Had it been possible to invest $1 at 5 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually, on that morning when William of Normandy landed in England and by defeating the Saxon Army at Hastings changed the complexion of Anglo-Saxon history, that dollar would have become $3,485,077,000,000,000 by today.

Again if Columbus had stopped to deposit a $1 under a similar interest arrangement on August 3, 1492, instead of occupying himself so completely with the task of discovering America, he would have today $1,842,679,000.

If some one had put aside $1 at the same rate of interest on the opening day of the Bank of England in 1694, he would now have a tidy credit of $55,702.60.

The first United States Bank, chartered by Act of Congress under the plan proposed by Alexander Hamilton, began business in 1791, only 135 years ago. In that relatively short time a $1 deposit unaided, save by 5 per cent interest compounded semi-annually, would have multiplied itself by 712. It would have a present value of $712.

The man who will regularly set aside a fairly substantial amount for investment, and will keep reinvesting the interest instead of diverting it to current issues, will have an estate quite astonishing in proportion to his annual savings before he realizes it. If a man saves $50.00 a month for 30 years, he will have accumulated $18,000.00. If he has been banking it concealed in a bag at home, or in a safety deposit vault, he will have just $18,000.00 and no more. If, however, he has deposited it in a Savings Bank at 3 per cent he will have $29,113.52, or, if he has invested it in 5 per cent bonds, reinvesting the interest, he will own $41,063.52, and, if the bonds had paid 6 per cent interest instead of 5 per cent he would be worth $50,227.67. This on an actual saving of only $18,000.00. Not many people expect to have half a million dollars when they are 65, but if at the age of 35 they begin to invest $2,500.00 a year at 5 per cent and keep the interest reinvested, they would have that sum. It is not necessary to depend on luck to become wealthy, for the ready effectiveness of compound interest makes consistent saving and investment attractive and puts a worth-while in every one's reach.

NASSAU PLANS ROUSING
GREETING FOR NEW CHIEF

Nassau, Bahamas.—(P)—Nassau, as the seat of Bahaman government, has planned a rousing reception for its new colonial governor and commander-in-chief, Mayor Charles Williams James Orr, C. M. G., upon his arrival.

REPORT INCREASE IN WISCONSIN BUILDING

The total volume of construction contracts let in the state of Wisconsin during the first eleven months of 1926 amounted to 105,653,700, according to P. W. Dodge corporation. The 1926 eleven months' total of contract awards has already exceeded the 1925 yearly total of 10 per cent. There was also an increase of 16 per cent over the figure for the corresponding eleven months of 1925.

New building and engineering work started in Wisconsin during November amounted to $10,349,000. This was the highest November figure on record, being 82 per cent in excess of November, 1925. The above figure also exceeded October of this year by 12 per cent.

Included in November's construction record for the state were the following important classes of work: $3,353,500, or 32 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $2,300,000, or 22 per cent, for educational buildings; $1,955,900 or 19 per cent, for commercial buildings; $1,425,000, or 14 per cent for social and recreational projects; $101,000, or 4 per cent, for public works and utilities; $376,600, or per cent for industrial buildings, and $225,000 or 2 per cent for religious and memorial buildings.

"SUNDAY"
"HAVIN' LOTS OF FUN" Abe Lyman's
California Orchestra
Fox Trots with Vocal Chorus

"SUNDAY" and "HAVIN' LOTS OF FUN" represent two of the newest fox trots. The former is a Benny Krueger song, and both numbers have been closely identified with Abe Lyman. Rhythm, rather than soft melody, is prominent in these numbers, which have a vocal chorus, done by Abe's talking violinist.

The Fun Shop

For the Puzzled Christmas Shopper
Here's a gift we recommend
As sure to please that motor friend:
A folding parking space to drop
On any street where he would stop!

Worse Yet!
Hodges: "I read that a man went over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Talk about danger!"
Morton: "Talk about danger, I went there for a honeymoon!"

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE
Hear Ye,
The meanest man from here to from
Just bought his infant son a drum
So he could make the constant noise
A reason for not buying toys!
-Jake Falstaff.

Cause and Effect!
With women buying Christmas gifts
The downtown streets are busy.
And all are wearing hose with rings-
No wonder that we're dizzy!
-Herman Fetzner.

Inconsiderate
"Christmas comes but once a year,"
Proclaims an old-time rhyme.
The trouble with the darned thing is
It comes at Christmas time!
-Abel Clarke.

Plunge Right Through That Line!
The windows are promising Christmas.
And now little lassies and boys
Who can fight through a dense crowd of adults
Can get a brief look at the toys!
-L. F. Spagna.

At Last!
Keen students of the foreign debt
Have now disclosed the trouble's cause:
The Europeans got mixed up
Twixt Uncle Sam and Santa Claus!

Her Fear
Arlene: "They say there are germs in ketchup."
Pauline: "Then I won't hang up any mistletoe this Christmas."
Arlene: "Why."
Pauline: "I'm afraid of mistletoemane poisoning."
-Mildred Miller.

DREAM ON! DREAM ON!
Dreams Interpreted Free
By Prof. I. C. Itt
Dear Professor:
I dreamed last night that Santa Claus had come, but when I looked closer it was my teacher, and after that I dreamed I was a fireman and was trying to put out a fire, but it was always behind me. What does that mean?
Samuel Reisman.
Dear Buddy:
You'll find out what it means the day after report cards are issued in your class. You aren't going to get a bicycle for Christmas, but it's all right, you wouldn't be able to sit on it anyhow!

Annie Prefers Factory To Kitchen, Housewife Finds

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—Who washes New London dishes? Is there a maid in every kitchen whose household maintenance fund is so small that it withers and the strain of a general utility maid to take the much overplayed role of Little Orphan Annie. Today there are few chickens to shoe off the porch, but there are any number of things that would keep Annie hustling to earn her board and keep. But has vanished so far as New London is concerned, and the women who do a bare half dozen.

Annie has gone to the factory where she does as she is told for so many hours a day and no longer.

And for as the rest of us, states one woman after another "the family could die and be buried, the dishes could collect skyhigh, while the baby is sick, the ironing remain unironed."

And the echo answers true to form saying yes, where indeed, is the middle class and Milady relinquishes the telephone receiver with a fierce bang, gets out the cleaning paraphernalia, rolls up her sleeves and wades in.

One housekeeper on Friday put in by actual count seven calls for aid on Saturday morning for general cleaning. A school girl answered disdainfully that she never did that kind of work. One had ironing to do, one woman was busy with Christmas plans, and another was ill. Another had company, one answered that she didn't think she could find the address. One would take care of children but knew nothing of cleaning and another simply stated no in such a manner as to end all argument and the last said she'd come and didn't. Again the S. O. S. sign was hauled in and Milady was sufficiently peeved so that the cleaning, personally conducted, was put across in much less than regulation time.

Yes, Annie and the chickens have completely vanished.

HERE'S 'WHO'S WHO' IN PAN-AMERICAN U. S. ARMY FLIGHT

Major Herbert A. Dargue, Commanding, to Lead V Formation of Planes

San Antonio, (AP)—Ten men who have taken a leading part in developing the army air service, by doing the day's work every day and leaving spectacular accomplishments to others, will pilot the five amphibian planes that leave here Dec. 20, for a tour of South America, Central America and the West Indies.

When air service headquarters asked commanders of various flying units over the country to recommend men to make the flight, the request specified that those men recommended should be master flyers who deserved the honor. The idea was to obtain men who had sacrificed the glamour and fame of spectacular flights to give all of their time to the less noticeable, but equally important phases of conquering the air.

MAJOR DARGUE COMMANDS
All of the flyers are competent aerial engineers and all have had long experience in the army. Major Herbert A. Dargue is the oldest of the group, which ranges between 30 and 40 years in age. Major Dargue is the veteran of many responsible undertakings. He was a star fencer at West Point, later the only air service officer in the Philippines, the first flier to receive a wireless message aloft, and finally in charge of all army flying instructions in the United States. This appointment came just as the armistice was signed. He will pilot the New York, flagship of the expedition, with Lieutenant Dennis C. Whitehead as relief pilot. Lieutenant Whitehead, born in Kansas and graduated from the University of Kansas, has had extensive engineering training and signal corps work.

Captain A. R. McDaniel, who as second in command will fly the San Antonio just to the right and behind the New York, was born in Texas, educated in Texas and has done most of his flying here. For two years he was in charge of all flying instruction at Kelly field. He was originally in the infantry but was transferred to the air service and started to study aviation while in the army of occupation. He will fly with Lieutenant C. McK. Robinson, a graduate of Ohio State university and an athlete well in college.

Captain Ira C. Eaker, third ranking officer of the flight, will take his place in the V formation just behind and to the left of Major Dargue's New York. Dedicate New Organ At Masonic Temple Dec. 22

The Peter Thom Memorial organ presented to the Masonic Temple association will be dedicated Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, in the lodge room of the Masonic temple. A dedicatory organ recital will be played by Prof. Arthur Arnecke of Milwaukee, one of the leading organists of the west. He will be assisted by vocalists and a violinist. All Master Masons and their wives and all members of auxiliary masonic bodies have been invited.

The new instrument was made by the Austin-Organ-co of Hartford, Conn. It has a variety of registrations and an unusually fine total balance and shading from the soft strings to the heavier diapasons. Dean Carl J. Waterman of Lawrence conservatory said: The plan of expression is new and is built in a manner to project effectively the distant effects as well as the near effects. The console is detached so that the organ may be played from any room in the building.

Mr. Thom was a member of Waverly lodge, Appleton chapter, the Consistory, Appleton Commandery, and the Shrine. The organ was presented in his memory.

There are three organs, the great, swell and pedal, with eight general combinations and eight combinations for each manual, balanced, swell and crescendo pedals; and electrically operating expression shades. The following specifications for the great organ have eight foot tones: open diapason, concert flute, unda maris dulciana. These have super-couplers and there is a large chime of a single note. The swell organ has eight foot tones in: violin diapason, stopped flute, echo salicional, viox celeste, flute vox humana and tremolo reed. The organ also has super and sub-couplers. The pedal organ has a 16 foot open diapason and bourdon which is connected to all the organs. There is a great-to-pedal reversible accessory, and three pedal foot couplers. E. A. Moore of Philadelphia, Pa., is in charge of the installation of the instrument.

Dr. J. A. Holmes, chairman of the organ committee, was in charge of the selection and is helping with the installation. He has had the training of an organ expert.

NYHUS SAILS FOR ORIENT THIS WEEK

Former Farm Agent Is Member of Agricultural Commission of U. S.

Paul O. Nyhus, former farm agent for the First National Bank of Appleton and county agricultural agent of Waupaca-co for several years, left Seattle, Wash., for the Orient this week, according to letters received by friends here this week. The former Appleton man resigned last fall as Federal crop statistician with headquarters at Madison to become a member of the agricultural commission of the United States department of agriculture.

In his capacity as a member of the commission, Mr. Nyhus is making the trip to China and Japan, he advised his local friends. In these countries he will establish a permanent office of the department of agriculture, make an economic study of Oriental farm products such as tobacco, wheat, cotton and fruit, study marketing possibilities for American products, such as tobacco, wheat, fruit and dairy products, and furnish American interests with current crop and market information of the Orient.

Before leaving for the Orient, Mr. Nyhus spent much time with farm and crop organizations on the west coast, seeking their problems in Oriental trade and attempting to discover what he could do in China and Japan to help them.

Ebeling, of the University of Wisconsin, is installed Jan. 1, 1927. Mr. Ebeling will leave his position as assistant to Dean H. L. Russell, of the Wisconsin college of agriculture.

His appointment as statistician followed the acceptance of a post in China by Paul O. Nyhus, former statistician.

Mr. Ebeling's youth was spent on a farm near Richfield, Wis. He attended high school at Hartford after which he taught in the public schools in Washington county. In addition to his work as a school teacher he also was proprietor of a small farm.

In 1917, Mr. Ebeling left his home county to attend the university for special agricultural training. The war situation becoming acute, he joined the army. After the war he returned to the university and finished the agricultural course in 1922, having taken courses in agricultural economics, agricultural journalism and animal husbandry.

Upon graduation Mr. Ebeling was immediately elected as assistant to the dean of the college of agriculture, a position he held since that time. Obtaining a Master's degree in 1925, he has done considerable work toward a doctor's degree, specializing in agricultural economics.

Appointment to his new position was made by John D. Jones, Jr. state commissioner of agriculture.
